

Appropriations Committee Deletes Exon Cuts, Juggles Funding

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee Thursday rejected Gov. J. James Exon's proposal for $10.4 million in state operational budget cuts.

The budget reductions were removed from his proposed LBS on a 5-4 vote.

Then, the committee rewrote the bill to juggle capital construction funding in such a way as to reduce 1975-76 general fund obligations by $5.6 million.

Advanced By 7-2

That proposal, authored by Sen. Douglas Bereuter of Uta, was accepted on a 7-2 vote, and the bill was forwarded to the Legislature on an identical count.

Dissenting were Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings and Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln.

Marvel and Simpson were joined by Sens. Bereuter and Leslie Stull of Alliance in opposing the motion to eliminate all proposed budget cuts. Their opposition was centered on a belief that selective reductions might be justified.

Simpson had suggested that state agencies which had not objected to the governor's proposal be subjected to budget cuts.

Funding Delayed

Bereuter's capital construction proposal substitutes cigarette tax money and federal revenue sharing funds for some general fund obligations, delaying funding which, he said, would not be expended during the current fiscal year anyway.

The proposal does not delay any construction already underway, he said.

It would delay fire safety revisions on buildings whose future use is undetermined, he said, and expenditures on three proposed buildings which are "in trouble legislatively."

They are the diagnostic and evaluation center for correctional offenders and the proposed state office buildings in Omaha and North Platte.

'To Meet Demands'

The revised bill would make money available "only to meet demands," Bereuter said, while easing the state treasury's cash flow problem.

"We are not delaying or deferring capital construction," he emphasized.

The action also has the effect of increasing general fund capital construction commitments for 1976-77 by some $2 million.

The committee appears likely to gut another Exon proposal on Friday when it considers the governor's bill to authorize deferment of payments to governmental subdivisions when the treasury encounters cash flow problems.

A hearing on the bill, LBS, is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m.

Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney has prepared a substitute proposal which would provide monthly payment of state aid and tax exemption disbursements instead of the current larger quarterly and annual payments.

That would ease the cash flow problems which the state faces, beginning in January.

Proration Opposed

School representatives told the committee Thursday they prefer monthly payments to the threatened proration of funds.

County representatives said some counties, including Lancaster and Douglas, could encounter problems with Clark's plan since they have budgeted for large state payments in December and January.

At earlier hearings during the day, Sens. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha and Frank Lewis of Bellevue opposed Exon's proposed budget cuts.

"We should not back down on the budget," Mahoney said.

But, he said, the Legislature should accept its share of the blame for "tampering" with tax rates as far back as 1973 and again earlier this year.

"We should say we made a mistake" when the Legislature limited this year's personal income tax rate to 12%, Mahoney said, and take the initiative in boosting the rate to 13% next Jan. 1.

Meanwhile, Exon's budget cutting proposal was dealt another blow when Attorney General Paul Douglas suggested that a section in the bill giving state agencies flexibility in distributing the proposed reductions is unconstitutional.

Answering an earlier committee inquiry, the governor told senators he knows of no 1975-76 general fund deficiency appropriation need other than the one he has already outlined for the Department of Correctional Services.

Franco's Power Removed

Madrid, Spain (UPI) — The Spanish government Thursday delegated the powers of gravely ill Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Ruler of the nation for nearly four decades, to his designated successor, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon.

The transfer of power made the 37-year-old prince acting chief of state for as long as Franco is unable to exercise power. Should Franco recover, he will resume control. Should he die, Juan Carlos will replace him permanently.

Franco has ruled Spain since 1939, when he emerged the victor from the Spanish Civil War with the aid of the fascist forces of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

At 12:25 a.m. (5:25 p.m. CST Thursday) Friday, a communique from El Pardo Palace said:

Resting Peacefully

"According to the doctors on duty, the caudillo talked with his family and the doctors who are looking after him. He is resting peacefully.

"The development remains the same since the last medical bulletin and so there will be no new bulletin until 7:30 a.m. (12:30 a.m. CST) Friday the 31st."

The government said it applied Article 11 of the Constitution, which provides for delegation of Franco's powers to the prince in case of illness of the chief of state.

The same law was applied in July 1974, when the prince became acting chief of state for six weeks when Franco suffered a near-fatal attack of phlebitis.

The decision was announced in the release of a letter from Premier Carlos Arias Navarro to the president of the Cortes (parliament) informing him that Article 11 had been applied.

It is the only formality needed for a delegation of powers.

The decision was taken after a day of hurried consultations between Arias, the prince and other officials. Arias repeatedly visited the ailing Franco at El Pardo Palace and presumably obtained his agreement.

Prince Reluctant

Prince Juan Carlos earlier was reported reluctant to take on Franco's powers again on a temporary basis. He was said to feel that his last such experience was frustrating because his role was largely that of a figurehead.

Arias, however, convinced him it was his duty to the nation to accept the temporary delegation of powers, government sources said.

The move ended a political and constitutional vacuum which has left Spain without an effective chief of state for 10 days since Franco suffered the first of a series of massive heart attacks — later complicated by other organic problems.

Government sources said it was decided to wait on the question of transfer of power until Franco's team of 19 doctors had examined him once again.

They said if his condition were found to be worse, the government would take no action and let nature take its course. But if the doctors found that his condition was unchanged, the prince would become acting chief of state to end a virtual paralysis of the state machinery caused by Franco's illness, they said.

The result of the examination was announced in a medical bulletin at 9:08 p.m. (2:08 p.m. CST). It said Franco's general condition was unchanged, but still grave.

An earlier medical bulletin released Thursday afternoon said Franco suffered a relapse when the fluid in his abdomen increased.

The later bulletin said:

"The general condition is unchanged. There have been no changes in the heart and circulation condition.

"The development of the blood-clotting process in the abdomen persists in its clinical symptoms. A puncture has been carried out to release the accumulation of liquid in the abdomen.

"The grave condition continues."

The bulletin was signed by "the usual medical team" without this time listing the names of the 19 doctors.

Cabinet Meeting

Government sources said Juan Carlos would preside at a meeting of the cabinet Friday at his Zarzuela Palace residence. Franco normally presides at the weekly gathering.

Even before the transfer of power, leftwing groups — still illegal under the existing regime — continued jockeying for a say in policy after Franco dies.

The Social Democratic Party issued a statement calling for full democratic freedoms. But it said the changeover must be brought about by peaceful means.

In a possible indication of an already more relaxed political atmosphere, the Social Democrats sent their statement to news offices by the Public Telex System.

Public Radio Reported Feasible

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

A public radio network "is feasible for Nebraska — more feasible now than it will be in future years," the Nebraska Educational Television (NETV) Commission learned Thursday.

And the question of public radio practicality in the state "is not whether, but when," declared a study prepared by Robertson Associates of Punta Gorda, Fla. After seven months studying the possibilities and interviewing Nebraskans, communications consultant James Robertson concluded that "two rather serious risks are inherent in any delay" by the commission.

First, Nebraska could lose "forever" the limited non-commercial, educational FM channels, as other radio interests obtain them. Second, Robertson cited "rapidly rising costs" of FM electronic broadcast equipment.

"There is also the serious consideration that Nebraskans are being deprived of programs now available and enjoyed by two-thirds" of all Americans via public radio, his report said.

Robertson recommended as a minimum first step that the NETV Commission promptly activate an initial Lincoln station.

He also suggested "that steps be taken to amend the current Nebraska legislation to include public radio as an equivalent responsibility of the NETV Commission."

Commissioners voted 5-0 to accept the 107-page report. Then Chairman Philip Heckman of Crete, who proposed establishing public radio exactly one year ago, ordered a move of "deliberate speed, which means go slow."

Heckman named Commissioners Edwin C. Nelson of Chadron, James D. Johnson of Kearney and Alvin Gilmore of Omaha to a committee to visit public radio stations in other states, and probe their effectiveness, use and operations.

Heckman said if commissioners ultimately decide they should pursue setting up a Nebraska network, they should "put something in front of the Legislature a year from now."

Robertson proposed a "nine-phase plan," which would gradually establish FM transmitters at each of the nine existing NETV transmitter sites, thus requiring no additional investment for radio buildings and towers.

Cost to set up initial station KUON-FM Lincoln (Mead), would be $220,427 and $148,871 to operate, serving at least 724,798 people, he said. Federal sources could reduce Nebraska's share of the Lincoln equipment cost to $66,023, and operating costs by $105,000 over three years.

To build the total statewide system, which would serve virtually 100% of Nebraskans, would cost $1,237,309; to operate all nine stations, $827,120 annually.

If some present NETV programs could be offered via public radio, Robertson said the resulting savings from escalating TV production costs "would mean more service for the same number of dollars."

Commissioner Dorothy L. Obbink noted Robertson's report shows no demand for public radio by Nebraskans nor by schools, and she questioned its validity.

Robertson replied that his survey revealed Nebraskans know little about public radio, thus haven't formed strong opinions. He said Wisconsin schools have used it successfully for 30 years.

And to Mrs. Obbink, Heckman said, "If we wait for a groundswell of demand," public radio "would never move ahead," just as television first won mere disinterest.

Robertson's report said, "The only strong objections expressed anywhere (in Nebraska) came from commercial broadcasters."

Car Wash Mob Hits Rush Hour

Cambridge, Mass. (UPI) — The car wash mob is lurking around Harvard Square.

A group of Harvard students rushed out and washed cars stopped at rush-hour traffic lights, as part of Harvard Prof. Vick Rubin's psychology and social relations course.

His 120 students have been assigned to violate the normal expectations of behavior which guide society, then watch people's reactions. Car washing may be only the start.

Deborah Koreznik, 20, said she and Richard Delaura, 19, had already tried another trick; she walked into a store with him on a leash and asked for dog food.

They were joined by Ross Johnston during the car washing, to which people reacted with shock, joy, and surprise.

"What are you doing?" was Peg Adams' reaction as her yellow sedan was sloshed with suds.

"I was shocked. First of all I thought negatively; I thought they were going to attack me. Then I quieted down, and decided there were too many dirty cars in Cambridge anyway," said Susan Grossman, speaking from her recently spruced-up compact.

"Why should I be mad? My car needed a washing anyway," Robert Four said.

Pranks pulled by Rubin's students in the past included:

- Attempts to buy the first 100 pages of a book.
- Attempts to buy only the collar of a coat.
- Refusal to pay sales tax, on the basis that the buyer doesn't believe in sales taxes.

Rubin told the students "not to do anything really serious, for the point is to draw a reaction, not to get into trouble."

What did Koreznik learn? "I'm not sure yet," he said. "But it was fun anyway."

New York Told: 'Take To Streets'

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Hugh Carey called on New Yorkers Thursday "to take to the streets . . . to sound off support for the city" in demonstrations aimed at getting Congress to approve emergency legislation to avoid a financial default by the city.

Carey's appeal came as the Senate Banking Committee in Washington approved a bill with $4 billion in loan guarantees for the city and sent it on to an uncertain fate on the Senate floor and a threatened veto by President Ford.

The bill would place the city on a strict fiscal regime to balance its budget and prevent a default after Dec. 1, when money from a state-designed $2.3 billion rescue package runs out. The city will need an estimated $4.2 billion for expenses and debt retirement from Dec. 1 to June 30.

President Ford said Thursday in San Francisco that New York City's financial crisis should serve as a warning to all municipalities to manage their affairs properly. Ford said if they do they will have no problem selling their municipal bonds on a free market.

Ford told the Metromedia, Inc., reporters that New York City has been mismanaged for 10 to 12 years and it now has the opportunity to strengthen its financial foundation by such means as raising taxes, cutting costs and modifying its expenditure programs.

He proposed amending federal bankruptcy laws to prevent New York City's creditors from tying up the city's finances in lawsuits if the city defaults.

"I believe my proposal is the only choice," he said. "Under my proposal, the city would come under the jurisdiction of a judge, not a politician," he said.

"I don't think the President of the United States should become a temporary mayor of New York City," he said.

After attending a fiscal briefing for civic and business leaders at the Pierre Hotel, Carey told a news conference that the city must respond to the President's threat to veto any bill that would have the federal government guarantee funds to prevent a default.

The Democratic governor said one expert had characterized the Republican President's speech as "the words of Archie Bunker to the music of Herbert Hoover."

"New York must fight back because of the body blow delivered by the President. And the way to do it is to get out into the streets," Carey said. He said he was thinking in terms of a mass rally, perhaps in Times Square, in the near future to be dubbed "Operation Come Back" or "Operation New York Alive and Healthy."

Help Make It A Safe Halloween

It's "trick or treat" time. Excited youngsters will be donning costumes Friday for their annual Halloween treat.

To make this Halloween more of a "treat" for, rather than a "trick" on, the youngsters, here are a few safety pointers:

- Be sure the boys and girls wear light clothing or that decorated with reflectorized tape.
- Remind them that their four-legged friends probably won't recognize them with their masks, and they should beware of strange animals.

- Tell them to wait until they have returned home to eat their "tricks and treats."
- Make sure masks don't impair vision.

- One parent should accompany younger children; older ones should be advised to go in groups or to use the buddy system.

- Remind trick or treaters that safety rules apply on Halloween, too. They should look both ways before crossing the street; cross only at the crosswalk; stay on the sidewalks.

Medicaid Pays $100,000 To Some

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare disclosed Thursday that 207 doctors in 16 states and the District of Columbia each earned more than $100,000 in public funds for treating poor Medicaid patients last year.

The highest amount paid was $451,156 to an unidentified physician in New York state.

The 207 physicians earned a total of $29.8 million in federal, state and local Medicaid funds. They represented about 2 per cent of the 90,117 physicians who treated Medicaid patients in 1974.

The disclosure was made in connection with HEW's decision to grant a freedom-of-information request from the New York Daily News to release the names of 13 New Jersey doctors who earned more than $100,000 each from Medicaid.

HEW said it will disclose the names of the over-100,000 Medicaid doctors in the other states in about two weeks.

HEW officials emphasized that the disclosure does not imply fraud or abuse of the Medicaid program by the doctors.

John A. Svahn, administrator of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said that single physicians may have submitted Medicaid claims on behalf of several physicians in a group practice who treat poverty patients. He added that individual physicians in a group practice may also have submitted individual claims.

He said the American Medical Association was notified in advance of the decision to release the names and raised no objections.

Payments to doctors comprised about 11 per cent of the $12 billion spent on 24 million Medicaid patients in 1974. The rest of the money went for hospital care, nursing home care, drugs and laboratory fees.

Svahn said the states, which administer the Medicaid program for welfare recipients and the medically indigent, will be directed to check out the claims submitted by the highest-paid physicians to make sure they were valid.

He said the New York state physician who earned the highest amount of money has been identified at HEW only as Dr. W. Triebel, but that the department does not yet have his hometown or address.

M. Keith Weikel, who heads the Medicaid program, expressed concern that the release of the names might discourage physicians from treating welfare patients.

"We have trouble now getting states to treat Medicaid patients," he said.

States, the number of physicians who earned more than $100,000 in Medicaid funds and the total amount they collected last year are:

New Jersey, 13, $1.8 million with the highest drawing $247,302; New York, 53, $9.5 million with the highest $451,157; District of Columbia, 7, $1.3 million with the highest $300,468; Pennsylvania, 4, $633,697 with the highest $156,345;

Alabama, 1, $273,848; Georgia, 7, $949,310 with the highest $152,517; Mississippi, 3, $1.1 million with the highest $175,173; Indiana, 2, $332,266 with the highest $210,195; Michigan, 18, $2.7 million with the highest $214,597;

Ohio, 2, $237,890, with the highest $136,900; Wisconsin, 1, $224,417; New Mexico, 1, $111,807; Oklahoma, 1, $100,261; Texas, 26, $3.5 million with the highest $215,185; California, 59, $8.1 million with the highest $348,387; Hawaii, 1, $139,906; and Washington, 1, $102,056.

HEW said that Massachusetts and Illinois do not have record systems which enable identification of over-100,000 Medicaid physicians.

Ford Asks Aid Package

Washington — President Ford asked Congress to approve foreign aid of nearly $6 billion for the current fiscal year, an unusually large amount that includes $3.4 billion for Israel and the Arab countries. This long-awaited $4.7 billion military and support-assistance request would supplement about $1.3 billion in economic and humanitarian aid that is already close to approval in Congress. In addition, the administration is asking for aid to international organizations and would allocate about $1.5 billion in food assistance, bringing the current over-all foreign-aid program to $8 billion. The total appropriation is expected to be closely examined by Congress, particularly in light of Ford's refusal to help New York City.

Santiago, Chile — The rigorous austerity plan adopted by the military junta to halt Chile's runaway inflation is making painful progress, but the economy is still hand-to-

Pollsters Say Americans' Economic Outlook Is Glum

Washington (UPI) — Americans are so glum over the economy that eight out of 10 think the recession is still thriving, seven think their leaders are lying, and six think neither political party cares about people, a panel of pollsters reported Thursday.

"By any measure . . . this is not a happy nor optimistic mood out there about the economy," said opinion-sampler Lou Harris.

"What it adds up to is not even a wait-and-see, skeptical public. It is a people who are close to voting no confidence in this administration on the economic measures it has taken. On the President's over-all economic program, his rating comes up at 68-23% negative."

Harris and other leading pollsters testified before the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

Though their figures differed, they drew much the same conclusions — most Americans believe the nation is still gripped in recession, that inflation will worsen and that their government is bungling efforts to right the situation.

Harris said his most recent survey 10 days ago showed that 81% of those sampled believe the country is still in the throes of a recession — despite the fact government economists are saying it is over.

Patrick H. Caddell of Cambridge Reports, blaming a "decade of psychological trauma" over Vietnam and Watergate, said his figures show that 68% of the public believe that in the last 10 years "America's leaders have consistently lied to the American people."

And, according to Peter D. Hart, 57% believe that both Democrats and Republicans "are more in favor of big business" than in the average worker.

"If this trend persists, it is within the realm of possibility that the United States will in the near future experience its greatest crisis of confidence since 1933," said Dr. Irving Crespi, executive vice president of the Gallup Organization, Inc.

The pollsters said Americans are willing to try radical new tactics — with six out of 10 prepared to vote for a presidential candidate who advocates employee ownership and management of major business and nine of 10 willing to forego meat once a week.

American, Foreign Prisoners Released By North Vietnamese

Bangkok, Thailand (UPI) — Nine Americans and five other foreigners captured by the Communists in the last days of the Vietnam war flew to freedom Thursday after nearly eight months of captivity. They said they were grateful to their captors for treating them well.

"This is a very happy moment for all of us," said Mrs. Carolyn Miller, 37, of Allentown, Pa.

Mrs. Miller, who arrived aboard the United Nations-chartered flight from Hanoi with her husband, John, 45, and their 6-year-old daughter, Luanne, expressed thanks to the North Vietnamese "for allowing us to return to our homes." The Millers are both members of the Christian Missionary Alliance.

The other Americans included three other missionaries, a student and the last two official American prisoners of war of the Vietnam conflict: Paul Struharik, 34, of Norton, Ohio, and James F. Lewis, 31, of Granda Hills, Calif.

The remaining returnees were an Australian, two Canadians and two Filipinos.

The group arrived from Hanoi following a brief stopover in the Laotian capital of Vientiane. They were met by U.S. Ambassador Charles Whitehouse and Garlanded with flowers by friends and relatives.

Eight of the nine Americans, including Struharik, described by American officials as a senior province representative of the U.S. Aid Mission to Vietnam, were captured in the Central Highlands town of Ban Me Thuot when it fell to the Communists in March.

Lewis, who had been feared dead until word came of his release, was captured in the fall of the South Vietnamese military command post in the coastal city of Phan Rang. He was described as a State Department employee assigned to the U.S. Consulate in Nha Trang.

The returnees were unanimous in reporting good treatment by their captors, although many of them suffered from malaria.

Brewery Executive Coors Refused As PBS Director

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Commerce Committee Thursday killed the nomination of brewing executive Joseph Coors, a supporter of arch conservative causes, to be a member of the board of directors of the Public Broadcasting Corporation.

The nomination was ordered tabled on an 11-6 vote.

Coors, 57, was first nominated for the post as one of former President Richard M. Nixon's last acts before he resigned. President Ford renewed the nomination when he took over last year.

The nomination ran into trouble primarily because of Coors' espousal and financial support of arch conservative causes at the same time he was building his own national television news network, Televisoin News, Inc.

Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the subcommittee which held hearings on the nomination, told Coors last month "No nomination which has come before this subcommittee has bothered me more than yours."

Coors refused to resign his post as head of TVN, saying that would be just a cosmetic move since it was controlled by Adolph Coors Brewery.

Medicaid Pays $100,000 To Some

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare disclosed Thursday that 207 doctors in 16 states and the District of Columbia each earned more than $100,000 in public funds for treating poor Medicaid patients last year.

The highest amount paid was $451,156 to an unidentified physician in New York state.

The 207 physicians earned a total of $29.8 million in federal, state and local Medicaid funds. They represented about 2 per cent of the 99,117 physicians who treated Medicaid patients in 1974.

The disclosure was made in connection with HEW's decision to grant a freedom-of-information request from the New York Daily News to release the names of 13 New Jersey doctors who earned more than $100,000 each from Medicaid.

HEW said it will disclose the names of the over-$100,000 Medicaid doctors in the other states in about two weeks.

HEW officials emphasized that the disclosure does not imply fraud or abuse of the Medicaid program by the doctors.

John A. Svahn, administrator of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said that single physicians may have submitted Medicaid claims on behalf of several physicians in a group practice who treat poverty patients. He added that individual physicians in a group practice may also have submitted individual claims.

He said the American Medical Association was notified in advance of the decision to release the names and raised no objections.

He said the New York state physician who earned the highest amount of money has been identified at HEW only as Dr. W. Triebel, but that the department does not yet have his hometown or address.

M. Keith Weikel, who heads the Medicaid program, expressed concern that the release of the names might discourage physicians from treating welfare patients.

"We have trouble now getting states to treat Medicaid patients," he said.

States, the number of physicians who earned more than $100,000 in Medicaid funds and the total amount they collected last year are:

New Jersey, 13, $1.8 million with the highest drawing $247,302; New York, 53, $8.5 million with the highest $451,157; District of Columbia, 7, $1.2 million with the highest $309,468; Pennsylvania, 4, $523,697 with the highest $156,345;

Alabama, 1, $273,848; Georgia, 7, $849,310 with the highest $152,517; Mississippi, 8, $1.1 million with the highest $175,172; Indiana, 2, $332,286 with the highest $210,195; Michigan, 18, $2.7 million with the highest $214,597;

Militia Outpost Overrun In Beirut Hotel District

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem gunmen appeared to gain the upper hand Thursday in Lebanon's civil war as they and their Palestinian allies overran the last forward Christian militia outpost in the downtown hotel district in Beirut and moved into the shadow of the 25-story Holiday Inn.

Unidentified gunmen kidnapped the third American in eight days. The victim, Clyde Huddleston, 47, of Ft. Worth, Tex., is a pilot for a Lebanese cargo airline. U.S. Embassy officers Charles Gallagher, 44, of Roanoke, Va., and William Dykes, 50, of San Jose, Calif., were abducted Oct. 22.

At United Nations headquarters in New York, Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim urgently appealed to "all parties to the civil conflict and to the people of Lebanon to put an end to bloodshed . . . in the interest of peace in the Middle East."

He warned that continued violence could bring "a breakdown of organized life" with repercussions beyond the country's borders.

Youths in green fatigues, armed with Soviet-made AK-47 assault rifles and backed by .50 caliber machine guns, poured through the Qantari district on a downhill run toward the battle-scarred 500-room Holiday Inn.

"Tonight we'll move ahead," a Moslem gunman told an Associated Press photographer following the advance. "This was just a probe." However, the gunmen halted in the darkness as security forces began patrolling the area, and the streetfighters said they planned to continue their advance Friday morning.

Looting was reported in the wake of the Moslem sweep. Police said a truckload of medical supplies was lifted from a pharmacy and a band of Kurds was pillaging shops and apartments vacated by fleeing Lebanese and foreigners.

A spokesman for the 6,000-man Phalange militia said Christian forces still controlled the Holiday Inn and the Phoenix, a neighboring 500-room hotel. Phalangist snipers fired from the roof of the Holiday Inn.

The Phalangists also occupied the St. George's Hotel on the waterfront after another Christian militia pulled out and the hotel staff fearfully ran up a white flag.

A left-wing Palestinian guerrilla official whose troops supported the Lebanese Moslems' attack said Christians from the right-wing Phalangist party militia "have suffered a military defeat."

The Christians now stand isolated in their traditional strongholds of Ashrafieh and Ein Rummaneh, and in the narrowing circle around the hotel district.

Their forces in the downtown hotels also risk getting pinched off from the main enclaves.

On one side the Christians are bordered by the Moslem-held Ein Mreisseh district near the U.S. Embassy and leading to northern areas controlled by the Palestinian guerrillas.

Moslem gunmen claimed they also were pushing into the Zeitouny neighborhood of strip clubs and seaside pickup bars. This would cut the Phalangist gunmen around the hotels from their main forces in Ashrafieh and Ein Rummaneh.

The battles raged despite Premier Rashid Karami's announcement Wednesday night of new agreements to enforce a cease-fire with backing from Yasir Arafat and other moderate Palestinian leaders.

"We still hope the warring factions will evacuate the combat positions in order to execute the cease-fire completely and ensure tranquility for the population," Karami said shortly before the Moslem advance.

But moderate Christian leader Raymond Edde said after a meeting with Karami and other officials that he was pessimistic.

"Those who foment fighting want to partition Lebanon," Edde said. "There is a persistent plot to force Karami to fail."

His comment in the face of Karami's new appeal reflected growing cynicism among Lebanese and foreign observers over whether the government was capable of doing anything to stop the bloodletting.

Parliament again failed to get the 50 of its 99 members necessary for a quorum and dispersed without a firm date to try again.

The failure of the traditional leadership has strengthened the hand of radical Moslem Lebanese leaders in tight alliance with the Palestinian guerrillas. It also has opened the way for increased Palestinian influence in Lebanese affairs.

This shift — if it lasts — comes at the expense of the 40 per cent Christian minority that traditionally has had the upper hand in Lebanese politics and business.

Brewery Executive Coors Refused As PBS Director

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Commerce Committee Thursday killed the nomination of brewing executive Joseph Coors, a supporter of arch conservative causes, to be a member of the board of directors of the Public Broadcasting Corporation.

The nomination was ordered tabled on an 11-6 vote.

Coors, 57, was first nominated for the post as one of former President Richard M. Nixon's last acts before he resigned. President Ford renewed the nomination when he took over last year.

The nomination ran into trouble primarily because of Coors' espousal and financial support of arch conservative causes at the same time he was building his own national television news network, Television News, Inc. Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the subcommittee which held hearings on the nomination, told Coors last month "No nomination which has come before this subcommittee has bothered me more than yours."

Coors refused to resign his post as head of TVN, saying that would be just a cosmetic move since it was controlled by Adolph Coors Brewery.

Future Hangs In Balance; Mid-State Voters To Decide

By RAY WALDEN
UNL School of Journalism
Miller — An Indian-summer wind sweeps through the Wood River Valley, rippling wheat and grass like waves across water — like waves on the surface of the reservoir which may cover part of the valley within a decade.

The wind kicks up dust on the main street of Miller, a town of 130 people in the hills above the Platte River 25 miles northwest of Kearney.

At Hi-Line Tavern a Saturday afternoon crowd splits its attention between draws of beer and a radio account of the Nebraska Cornhuskers' scoring touchdowns. Nearby, cars line the ditch at Miller Christian Church. A somberly dressed crowd gathers on the browning church lawn, ready to follow a hearse to Armada Cemetery a mile north of town across a bridge spanning the Wood River.

Stream Small
A motorist crossing the Wood River is likely to give it meager attention — at Miller the stream is little more than a creek. But the Wood River may have a devastating effect on the people of Miller and the valley in which it lies.

A proposed dam on the Wood River just west of Amherst would create a reservoir that would put Miller under about 20 feet of water.

An election Tuesday will reaffirm or kill plans to build the Nebraska Mid-State Reclamation Project, a $172-million irrigation system of which Amherst Reservoir is a part.

The people of Miller can't vote in that election, even though it likely will decide whether their town will live or die, at least at its present site. That decision rests with voters in another part of the state — the 550,000-acre Nebraska Mid-State Reclamation District.

Project Said Needed
Promoters claim the project is needed to provide water recreation in Central Nebraska, enhance fish and wildlife and eliminate the danger of destructive floods. Opponents dispute each of those points.

Much of the land for project reservoirs and canals lies outside the district. As planned, some of that land belongs to Faud Malloley, who has irrigated in Dawson County since the early 1930s. He pointed to the projected path of the Mid-State Canal across part of his 1,200 acres near Overton.

"It's coming just west of Josselyn (an alfalfa dehydrator plant on U.S. 30) there," he said. "It'll go across that pivot system and follow the high line, then cut across where that pipe is. We just got that land levelled for irrigating."

Malloley said it cost about $50,000 to install his center-pivot irrigation system. The canal would cut across the pump in the field he indicated. So he would have to level the land on both sides and install two more pumps for gravity irrigation.

Opposes Project
Wilbur Margritz, a neighbor of Malloley who farms more than 2,000 acres, also opposes Mid-State.

"It's going to take our land out of production and maybe put some more into production somewhere else and spend millions to do it," he complained.

Margritz said the canal will take more land out of production through seepage — water seeping under surrounding land and creating a swamp of sorts.

Seepage also concerns some residents of Cairo and Grand Island. They fear raised groundwater levels will flood basements.

But Mid-State General Manager Don Shriner of Grand Island says the water table around Cairo would have to rise 50 to 60 feet before seepage could affect homes in the town.

Mid-State promoters say the project is necessary because the sea of underground water beneath Nebraska is being drained by heavy pump irrigation.

The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation estimates 250,000 acres could be sustained with pump irrigation in the next few decades without the project and an additional 44,000 acres could be developed with the project.

About 85% of irrigable land in the district is now irrigated.

Promoters say a surface irrigation system using diverted river water will stabilize groundwater levels through recharge, reversing the trend to depletion. But project opponents reject bureau claims of significant groundwater declines.

"We're now pumping from the same level as we have for many years," said Gibbon farmer Mark Bolin.

The aquifer (water-bearing formation) is recharged by Platte River flow, he said, so diversion of Platte water would hurt recharge as much as help it.

For the past three decades the 70-year-old Bolin has been the main spokesman of Mid-State Irrigators Inc., formed in 1947.

As part of a battery of information he uses against Mid-State, Bolin cited a spring U.S. Geological Survey report that predicts extensive seepage problems, and says Mid-State could waterlog 20,000 acres in Merrick County, ruining that land for agriculture. And after the project is in place for 30 years, it could cause another 20,000 acres to become waterlogged, the report indicated.

Bureau of Reclamation planning officer John Mayne of Grand Island said planners will counter the waterlogging effect with 600 or more wells to help stabilize groundwater in any potential problem area.

Sides Form
In recent weeks both sides have gained support from new citizen's groups. Lining up with the opposition have been groups based in Cairo, Dawson County and Platte Township. Pro-Mid-State forces have welcomed formation of groups in Hall and Buffalo counties.

Bolin's Mid-State Irrigators is a member group in the Save the Platte Committee, a Hastings-based coalition of groups opposing Mid-State. It was formed last spring.

The Save Our Land Committee formed in late July in Miller. Committee chairwoman Paula Siebke said a Sept. 3 meeting in Miller boosted the membership to about 250. Its board of directors includes Dawson County farmers Malloley and Margritz.

Moves Forced
Mrs. Siebke said the committee's purpose is to tell its side of the Mid-State story to people in the district. It does this mostly through press releases and newspaper ads. The group has received about $1,200 in private donations to continue its publicity campaign, she said.

"Personally, I don't think they are putting it through for irrigation," Mrs. Siebke said. "They couldn't. It doesn't make any sense. It's more or less people sitting behind their desks wanting to keep their jobs and stay active. Also big business wants to make money out of it."

Town Not Dying
"The Bureau of Reclamation thinks this is a dying town," she said. "But there are quite a few young people here. Many moved in during the last few years."

Shriner said he can sympathize with the Miller residents' objections.

"It's likely that Miller won't be here 10 or 15 years from now," he said. "It's sad if you're part of that 25,000 acres to be inundated — no one can discount the sentimental side of having to relocate somebody — but you have to look to the future."

Sites Not Suitable
Shriner said the reservoirs will be built outside the Mid-State district because there are no suitable sites within it. People outside the district, even though they may be affected by the Tuesday vote, cannot vote on the project because district boundaries were determined long before the current plans for reservoir and canal sites were made.

When project developers first proposed Mid-State in the 1940s, the plans took shape on a smaller scale than now. It was a $10 million project in 1943. The reclamation district was established and given taxing power by the voters of the district in 1948. The issue carried by a 2-1 margin.

That allowed the nine-member Mid-State board of directors to levy one mill against all property in the district — irrigated or not, farmland or city — and two mills when the water is delivered. The levy is now .88 mills. The year's district budget is $234,000.

In 1957 the project went before the voters again. This time they renewed the district's mandate by a 10-1 margin.

Bureau Takes Charge

In 1958 the Mid-State board asked to be authorized as a federal reclamation development project under the U.S. Interior Department. So the Bureau of Reclamation took charge of planning, although the district is still managed by a locally elected board.

Federal authorization finally was approved by Congress and signed by President Johnson in 1967.

By that time project plans included a diversion dam on the Platte seven miles southeast of Kearney, a dam on the Wood River near Riverdale, a system of 23 ravine reservoirs, floodways and four hydroelectric plants. The projected cost was $108 million, compared with $61.2 million in 1964.

By 1971 the price tag was up to $124 million. A year later the Bureau of Reclamation and district board revised their plans to the present form. That jacked the estimated cost to $172 million. Some $44 million will be paid back by the district through the sale of water. The rest will be paid with federal money and power revenues collected by the Missouri River Basin Commission, which has jurisdiction over Mid-State.

Price Could Rise
By the time construction begins, the price could mount considerably. According to project engineers, 1978 is the earliest construction could begin, and it could be a decade before water is delivered.

An amendment to the 1967 authorization bill, proposed by Bolin and Mid-State Irrigators, put a drag on the project timetable.

The project is designed to provide irrigation water for 140,000 acres. So the amendment requires the district board to have in hand contracts signed with landowners for the full 140,000 "serviceable and irrigable acres" before construction money can be appropriated.

Signup Slow
Contract signup began four years later, but went too slowly to satisfy federal officials and Congress.

To speed a drive to sign up acreage, Mid-State hired Shriner to take the $25,200-a-year job in Grand Island. The district also pays $12,000 a year to a lobbyist in Washington, D.C.

Signup is nearing the 160,000-acre mark. That is apparently more than needed, but the district is pushing for at least 170,000 acres, realizing some lands will be out of the service area or unsuitable for irrigation.

The increasing success of the sign-up campaign is what pushed people like Mrs. Siebke into actively opposing the project. Also in recent years state and national conservation and environmental groups have joined Mid-State Irrigators in opposition. Some of those groups formerly favored Mid-State.

Conservationists Concerned
While Bolin has attacked Mid-State from the angles of hydrology and economics, the conservation groups point out another concern — the river habitat.

Mid-State plans to divert about 295,000 acre-feet of water each year out of the Platte near Overton. Present flow is estimated at 800,000 acre-feet and could drop to 620,000 acre-feet a year under future development conditions, which include the proposed Narrows Reservoir on the South Platte in Colorado. Water would be diverted during times of high and medium river flow and released into it during low flows.

That means "fewer dry days and more damp days," Ms. Bowen said. She expressed the concern she shares with other environmentalists about the effects of reduced flows on the one million migratory waterfowl which use the middle Platte between Lexington and Grand Island for mating grounds.

Cranes Said Endangered
Special concern is given the 300,000 Sandhill cranes, an estimated 90% of the continent's crane population, which use the Platte for their spring breeding ritual.

"The great bend of the Platte River holds in its trust an entire species," Ms. Bowen said.

The "mile wide and ankle deep" Platte provides large, shallow stretches of water ideal for roosting and feeding waterfowl. Nearby wet meadows make good feeding grounds.

Lower river flows may dry up the wet meadows and eliminate necessary scouring of sandbar vegetation, according to conservationists.

The U.S. Geological Survey report concluded that high January to March flows are needed to sustain the Sandhill cranes habitat and that this will happen without the project. But the report called for more study on the effects the Mid-State diversion of water would have.

A tentative draft report for the Missouri River Basin Commission agreed that the project needs more study. Director Carroll Hamon said he wants to know more about what lower flows would do to wildlife.

Lowry said Mid-State is more likely to help wildlife than hurt it because "if a drought hits, or a low-water season, Mid-State can assist these folks and their wildlife by releasing some water."

In recent months Mid-State officials have stepped up their verbal attacks on national critics, especially the Audubon Society. They say criticism is coming from Eastern interests with little or no economic future staked on the welfare of agriculture in the district.

"You have to look at the next shortage," Shriner said, "and the President says it's water. It will be worse than anything we've seen yet, such as the oil shortage. The ones who get there first with the water application will get the water in their area."

Water Lost

Project promoters say seven million acre-feet of water leave the east end of Nebraska each year to flow into the Gulf of Mexico and be "lost forever."

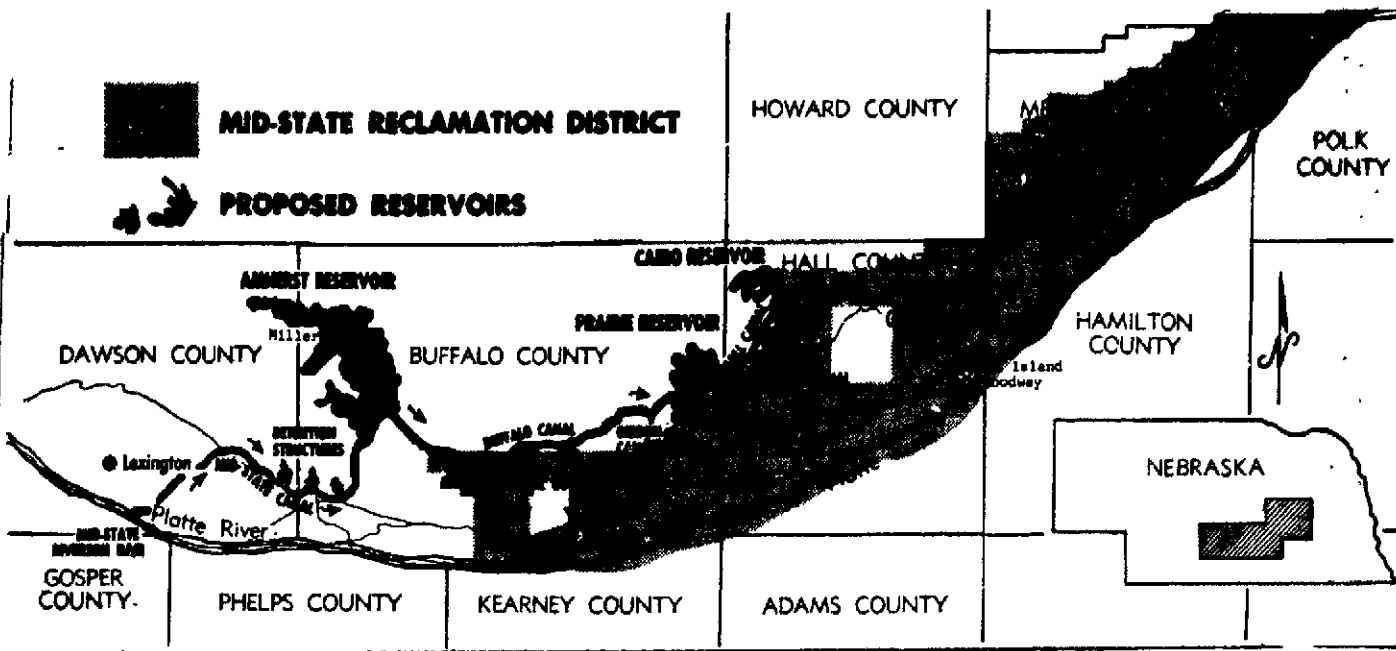

Their aim is to "keep it here" for raising crops and stabilizing the groundwater, which would benefit farmers not signed for project water as well as those paying for it, they say.

The Grand Island City Council recently voted to back the project because of its flood-control benefits. On the other hand, former Third District Rep. Dave Martin came out against the plan because of rising construction costs. While in Congress Martin backed the project.

What it boils down to is whether the voters of the district, 8% of whom own farmland, will vote yes or no to the question on the ballot, "Shall the District be continued for an additional 15 years?"

If yes, residents of Miller can begin eyeing new locations for their town and the Bureau of Reclamation can continue work on the required Environmental Impact Statement before requesting construction money from Congress. Completion of that report may take a year to 18 months.

If not, the Mid-State district would lose its taxing power, chances for congressional appropriations for construction probably would vanish and, according to Lowry, "we would never be in line again" for federal reclamation money.

Project Proposals Revised In 1972

The Nebraska Mid-State Reclamation District ranges in width from five to 15 miles north to south. It stretches about 75 miles along the north bank of the Platte River from west of Kearney to east of Silver Creek in northeastern Merrick County. Of the 555,000 acres in the district, the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation classes 358,000 as irrigable, and 319,000 acres were under irrigation in 1973.

The components of the Mid-State project, as revised in 1972, are:

- Diversion dam on the Platte east of Lexington and the 28-mile Mid-State Canal to Amherst Reservoir.
- Amherst Dam and Reservoir on the

Wood River about three miles upstream from Amherst in western Buffalo County. The dam would form a lake with a surface area of about 12,300 acres, or five times the area of Johnson Lake south of Lexington.

—Buffalo Canal running 30 miles from Amherst Reservoir to Prairie Reservoir.

—Prairie Dam on Prairie Creek and tributary north of Sheldon in eastern Buffalo County. Two embankment sections would back up a lake with a surface area of 3,400 acres.

—Hall Canal running nine miles to Cairo Reservoir.

—Cairo Dam and Reservoir on Dry Creek about two miles west of Cairo in northwestern Hall County. The lake would have a 1,500-acre surface area.

—Dry Creek, Center and Buckeye Reservoirs in central Buffalo County.

—Floodways at Kearney, Buckeye, Valley, Shelton, Grand Island, Chapman, Clarks and Silver Creeks.

—A distribution system of laterals and ditches to deliver irrigation water to 140,000 throughout the district. The acres receiving Mid-State water must be grouped so that an irrigation system can be built to serve them economically. A 1902 federal law limits each landowner to sign no more than 160 acres to be irrigated by the project.

While Bolin has attacked Mid-State from the angles of hydrology and economics, the conservation groups point out another concern — the river habitat.

Mid-State plans to divert about 295,000 acre-feet of water each year out of the Platte near Overton. Present flow is estimated at 800,000 acre-feet and could drop to 620,000 acre-feet a year under future development conditions, which include the proposed Narrows Reservoir on the South Platte in Colorado. Water would be diverted during times of high and medium river flow and released into it during low flows.

That means "fewer dry days and more damp days," Ms. Bowen said. She expressed the concern she shares with other environmentalists about the effects of reduced flows on the one million migratory waterfowl which use the middle Platte between Lexington and Grand Island for mating grounds.

Cranes Said Endangered
Special concern is given the 300,000 Sandhill cranes, an estimated 90% of the continent's crane population, which use the Platte for their spring breeding ritual.

"The great bend of the Platte River holds in its trust an entire species," Ms. Bowen said.

The "mile wide and ankle deep" Platte provides large, shallow stretches of water ideal for roosting and feeding waterfowl. Nearby wet meadows make good feeding grounds.

Lower river flows may dry up the wet meadows and eliminate necessary scouring of sandbar vegetation, according to conservationists.

The U.S. Geological Survey report concluded that high January to March flows are needed to sustain the Sandhill cranes habitat and that this will happen without the project. But the report called for more study on the effects the Mid-State diversion of water would have.

A tentative draft report for the Missouri River Basin Commission agreed that the project needs more study. Director Carroll Hamon said he wants to know more about what lower flows would do to wildlife.

Lowry said Mid-State is more likely to help wildlife than hurt it because "if a drought hits, or a low-water season, Mid-State can assist these folks and their wildlife by releasing some water."

In recent months Mid-State officials have stepped up their verbal attacks on national critics, especially the Audubon Society. They say criticism is coming from Eastern interests with little or no economic future staked on the welfare of agriculture in the district.

"You have to look at the next shortage," Shriner said, "and the President says it's water. It will be worse than anything we've seen yet, such as the oil shortage. The ones who get there first with the water application will get the water in their area."

Water Lost
Project promoters say seven million acre-feet of water leave the east end of Nebraska each year to flow into the Gulf of Mexico and be "lost forever." Their aim is to "keep it here" for raising crops and stabilizing the groundwater, which would benefit farmers not signed for project water as well as those paying for it, they say.

The Grand Island City Council recently voted to back the project because of its flood-control benefits. On the other hand, former Third District Rep. Dave Martin came out against the plan because of rising construction costs. While in Congress Martin backed the project.

What it boils down to is whether the voters of the district, 8% of whom own farmland, will vote yes or no to the question on the ballot, "Shall the District be continued for an additional 15 years?"

If yes, residents of Miller can begin eyeing new locations for their town and the Bureau of Reclamation can continue work on the required Environmental Impact Statement before requesting construction money from Congress. Completion of that report may take a year to 18 months.

If not, the Mid-State district would lose its taxing power, chances for congressional appropriations for construction probably would vanish and, according to Lowry, "we would never be in line again" for federal reclamation money.

Project Proposals Revised In 1972

The Nebraska Mid-State Reclamation District ranges in width from five to 15 miles north to south. It stretches about 75 miles along the north bank of the Platte River from west of Kearney to east of Silver Creek in northeastern Merrick County. Of the 555,000 acres in the district, the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation classes 358,000 as irrigable, and 319,000 acres were under irrigation in 1973.

The components of the Mid-State project, as revised in 1972, are:
—Diversion dam on the Platte east of Lexington and the 28-mile Mid-State Canal to Amherst Reservoir.
—Amherst Dam and Reservoir on the

Wood River about three miles upstream from Amherst in western Buffalo County. The dam would form a lake with a surface area of about 12,300 acres, or five times the area of Johnson Lake south of Lexington.

—Buffalo Canal running 30 miles from Amherst Reservoir to Prairie Reservoir.

—Prairie Dam on Prairie Creek and tributary north of Sheldon in eastern Buffalo County. Two embankment sections would back up a lake with a surface area of 3,400 acres.

—Hall Canal running nine miles to Cairo Reservoir.

—Cairo Dam and Reservoir on Dry Creek about two miles west of Cairo in northwestern Hall County. The lake would have a 1,500-acre surface area.

—Dry Creek, Center and Buckeye Reservoirs in central Buffalo County.

—Floodways at Kearney, Buckeye, Valley, Shelton, Grand Island, Chapman, Clarks and Silver Creeks.

—A distribution system of laterals and ditches to deliver irrigation water to 140,000 throughout the district. The acres receiving Mid-State water must be grouped so that an irrigation system can be built to serve them economically. A 1902 federal law limits each landowner to sign no more than 160 acres to be irrigated by the project.

Default In Leadership?

New York Mayor Abe Beame raised the issue of another kind of default not associated with his city's financial problems Wednesday and we think he hit the nail on the head.

Beame said President Ford's proposal to allow New York City to lapse into default before any federal action is taken is "nothing less than a declaration of default by the White House — a default of presidential leadership."

The President did say Wednesday he would ask Congress for legislation to ensure police and fire protection and other essential services if New York City defaults on its debts. But he said he would veto any bailout legislation designed to ward off default.

The President's position is that "all the working people of this country" should not be forced to rescue "a few desperate New York officials and bankers."

They cheer Ford at the $250-a-plate GOP fundraising dinners and on most American streetcorners west of the Hudson River for talking up such stuff. The no-bailout line is good political copy. There is much natural antagonism in Middle America toward New York and its recent cast of chic politicians, staggering welfare rolls, union domination and huge ethnic blocs, and Ford is doing his best to exploit it.

Again, this is the politics of divisiveness; pitting segments of American society one against the other.

And it is a brand of nonleadership.

Again The People Lead

It is often said that elected representatives have a hard time keeping up with the public mood and in the case of gun control the gap is ridiculous.

The recent attempts on President Ford's life renewed interest in the subject. Pollster Louis Harris reported some days ago that over three-fourths of the public favored the registration of hand guns.

The most recent Gallup poll showed similarly that 77% of its nationwide sample favors a Massachusetts law which requires that a person who carries a gun outside his home must have a license to do so. And the provision in that law that anyone convicted of carrying a gun without a license be given

Laying the blame for the actions of a "few desperate New York officials and bankers" at the feet of eight million people is in character with Ford's conduct of the presidency in other areas: the veto binge, the smokescreen and duplicity veiling the administration's treatment of farmers, the political trips around the country and abroad which will yield questionable results — anything, it seems, but finding solutions to problems. Earnest, sincere, warm, open and friendly he may be as a human being, but as President he has not grasped the meaning of leadership.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey, Beame and others are asking that the federal government back up New York while the city and the state swallow humble pie and go about the business of putting their governments back on sound fiscal footing. That seems to be the reasonable thing to do. At least it would be reasonable to have an open mind and look at the options. Even if the federal government were to act as guarantor, there are plenty of whipping boys and scapegoats around upon whom to heap blame for those politicians who need them. One could help New York and gain political advantage at the same time.

What Ford and others opposed to federal aid hope is that when New York defaults the consequences will be bad enough to teach people a lesson about the evils of welfare statism and unionism, but not bad enough to have a devastating economic ripple, or domino, effect.

That is quite a gamble they are taking.

a mandatory sentence of one year in jail is supported by seven of ten of those who approve of the licensing requirement. In response to another question, 69% feel that laws covering the sale of handguns should be made more strict.

The survey noted that "as early as 1938 the Gallup Poll found the American public wanted stricter control on guns."

But who listens to the public. Most politicians listen to the gun lobby instead.

This is the classic case of politicians ignoring the wishes of a vast majority of people. Apparently they know on which side their bread is buttered.

KINGSBURY SMITH

War Or Liberal Reform?

ROME — What happens in Spain will now depend to a very great extent on the Spanish army and the character of Prince Juan Carlos, the 37-year-old king-designate.

If discipline is maintained in the army and it backs the young king-to-be, Spain may be spared another horrible civil war and it may gradually move towards democratic liberalization.

If there is a split in the army between the younger, more liberal-minded officers and the fascist-type generals of the Franco regime, the country could be plunged into civil war, or at least into the undisciplined military and political turmoil that plagues Portugal.

If the army fails to support Juan Carlos, he will be king in little more than name and his reign is likely to be short-lived.

The moment of truth is at hand for the handsome, 6-feet-2, athletic descendant of the Bourbons. There is even uncertainty, though it is considered slight, as to whether he will be proclaimed king.

Under the mechanism of succession decreed by Generalissimo Franco, it will take eight days from his death for the transition formalities to be completed. During that time the ambitious family of Franco may try to block Juan Carlos from ascending the Spanish throne. The family is known to prefer the Duke of Cadiz, Alfonso de Bourbon Dampierre. A cousin of Juan Carlos, the duke is married to Franco's granddaughter.

If that plot fails and Juan Carlos becomes king, the next test may come between the new monarch and the hardliners of the old regime, especially in the military leadership. It will be a question of whether Juan Carlos has the courage and willpower to risk a showdown on the issue of liberal reform with the old guard leaders who are solidly installed in the state machinery, and whether he will gain sufficient popular support to enable him to do so successfully.

Seldom has a man called to be leader of his country aroused such contradictory judgments as has Juan Carlos. Scoffed at by critics as a weak Franco puppet who lacks the charisma to inspire popularity, he is considered by friends to be highly intelligent with qualities of leadership and personality that will surprise many when he is no longer bound by the restrictions Franco imposed on him.

In an interview with William Randolph Hearst Jr., editor-in-chief of the Hearst Newspapers, and the writer earlier this year, the probably future king made it clear he intended to be a strong, progressive leader when he ascends the throne.

Within the privacy of his office in La Quinta-El Pardo Palace on the outskirts of Madrid, the grandson of the last king of Spain shows no reticence in saying to visitors what he was never allowed by Franco to say publicly in Spain. He told us he was determined to bring about liberal reforms, though he thinks the changes must come gradually and not be attempted overnight so as to avoid the danger of a violent clash between extremists of the right and left.

He said he wants the political structure of Spain to be based on democracy and not dictatorship. He is committed to a constitutional, not authoritarian, monarchy, though he intends to make full use of the power granted to him under the constitution established by Franco. As king, he will be chief of the armed forces and will have the right to choose the prime minister from three names submitted to him by a council of state.

He knows the majority of the people, and especially the youth, want a liberalization of the regime. He feels it is necessary to "march with the times, and listen to the youth." He points out that 60% of the present Spanish population was born after the civil war of the '30s, and he is convinced the overwhelming majority of the people do not want to see a recurrence of that terrible time.

"Peace, unity and modernization are what the people wish," he said recently. "Those are the great tasks of our generation."

Juan Carlos believes he can count on the younger officers in the armed forces to support him. He has kept in close touch with those with whom he served in the army, navy and air force during his military training. He has consulted them frequently concerning the post-Franco era and claims that he is guided by their advice.

As for the older captains-general of the military commands, "that," in his words, "is another matter." They consider him too liberal.

If Juan Carlos, who as prince projected the image of a modest, quiet, serious-minded young man, displays strong, progressive leadership as king and can rely on the support of the Spanish army, he might have a long reign.

New York's Day Of Reckoning

WASHINGTON — The essence of President Ford's speech on the bankruptcy of New York City was in this line: "New York City's officials have proved in the past that they will not face up to the city's massive network of pressure groups as long as any alternative is available."

So he removed that alternative, once and for all. No more winks and body English from Vice President Rockefeller to raise false hopes; no more reading into the sincere market-calming assurances of Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns the chimera of last-minute largesse.

No New Yorker can say that Ford led him down the garden path and then doublecrossed him. Except for one moment — when the President called his differences with Rockefeller's hints at debt-guarantees "minimal" — both the President and his press secretary have been consistent, and as it turns out, truthful about the administration's intent.

Uncertainty is now removed; like it or not, the President's speech was surely timely, and the removal of question marks was necessary. What happens next?

First, New York's politicians, special-interest groups and boosters will emit one long, fierce roar of anger and anguish. Nothing wrong with that; people are human.

Next, city and state officials will stop pretending that nothing more can be done locally to balance the budget and ultimately restore investor confidence.

Then, sensible bankers and businessmen will stop running around predicting riot and collapse after default, since that tactic did not work, and will begin to act like prudent businessmen again, building a plan of reorganization on the bedrock of the new reality.

Fourth, House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino, who has been bottling up necessary bankruptcy legislation so that he can never be accused of greasing the city's skids, will — with great reluctance — report out the bill that should have been on the House floor weeks ago.

Then — and this is less certain — the Congress may pass unnecessary legislation to guarantee city indebtedness, in order to elicit the promised Ford veto and prove to some constituents that some congressmen wanted to "save" New York. But it will be so checken of punitive controls that even New York congressmen will gag at the prospect.

Sixth, the realization will dawn that there was never much difference between the home rule given up to a federal board of overseers (as envisioned by the guarantee enthusiasts) and the home rule handed over to a federal bankruptcy judge. In both cases, the city admits incompetence and receives protection.

Then, with good sense and some good humor, the city's power brokers will appear and make the deals needed for union officials to say "not my fault" to their members, and bankers to say "don't blame us" to investors. The sense of helplessness and the foretaste of doom will recede when the fact is accepted that the buck ends in New York.

"Maybe you'd like to stand this in front of some other city"

Especially when the federal government, having made its proper federalist point in turning down the takeover of a unit of local government, does in fact what it hates to admit in philosophy: make sure "essential services for the protection of life and property in New York are maintained." Sen. James L. Buckley saw to that.

Beyond keeping cops on the beat, an infusion of federal money to help the city pay its current debt will be forthcoming. Ford talked only of

"debt certificates . . . paid out of future revenues" but I'm told this means that the national government will buy those bonds and make it possible for the city to redeem them with future revenue-sharing funds. That is a way of providing the turnaround money — the "bailout" — while maintaining the stern expression of Uncle Skinfint.

The city, if it defaults, will accept the name but not the shame of bankruptcy. We will not see the panic, the rippling rhythm, the general strikes, or all the thousand unnatural shocks we have been promised by worried and harried men.

Grumbling, muttering under their breath, New Yorkers will patch together the beginnings of a way out. Life won't be the same in City Hall, and investors will have to wait longer for their full payout, but the city's residents have resources of pride, courage and stoicism — even selflessness — that have been too long untapped.

New York is being given the fact but not the appearance of federal help. This will force the city to heroic efforts of self-help, which is a healthy atmosphere for financial and cultural creativity.

For a time, New York politicians will unload their frustrations on Gerald Ford. But before this decade ends, a reinvigorated and solvent city will thank him for not postponing the necessary day of reckoning, and for refusing to allow the nation's first city to sell the local sovereignty of its citizens for a mess of federal guarantees.

Facing The Realities

I have been following The Star's articles in reference to and about the activities of Senator Ernest Chambers, Sherdell Lewis and Deputy Sheriff Rod Loos. It has been most entertaining.

The articles create heated discussions, facts and fiction of what actually happened, figments of imagination, and super rumors, which idle minds send flowing vividly throughout the city.

Never fear, Senator Chambers is always near, ready to pounce on the establishment, demanding justice from anyone who will hear him scream. The godfather of all black men and women, demanding their rights be honored and the Constitution of this great country be upheld to the fullest. Granted, I couldn't agree with him more on the rights of the people of this country.

Mr. Chambers is using the black people and the incidents that they may be involved in. This seems to get lots of publicity from the press, and before the case is ever revealed, they have the alleged officer involved convicted of a crime. The only thing they haven't got to as yet is the location of the hanging — which cottonwood tree to use and who is to furnish the rope. Perhaps Mr. Chambers can finance the rope through the Nebraska Legislature?

I don't know all the circumstances involved in the Sherdell Lewis incident. I don't live in Lincoln. If that officer were wrong, then he should be prosecuted, but if he is innocent, let's get off his back!

Let's be realistic in what we expect of our law-enforcement officers. What is the officer in these situations supposed to do — be shot and possibly killed first? That sounds great, if you're not the officer.

The death of Sherdell Lewis was a reality. The plight of Deputy Sheriff Rod Loos is a reality. When the American people start dealing with fact as opposed to fiction, the quality of life and the quality of police service become a reality.

Evening Council Sessions

I was appalled by the recommendation made Monday by City Council members Cook and Sikyta to do away with evening City Council sessions. Instead of eliminating the one evening meeting a month, the elected officials should schedule all their weekly sessions during the evening.

Public participation is greatly hindered when the council meetings are held in the early afternoon. Many interested citizens cannot leave their jobs to attend; the audience is then composed mostly of paid lobbyists for special interests.

It is my hope that the other City Council members recognize the importance of citizen participation and that they will move to increase rather than decrease the opportunity for citizens to appear before the City Council to be heard.

A Half-Dozen And Six

I noticed in Tuesday's Star that the Lincoln City Council had reconsidered its previous reconsideration of the motion it defeated concerning participation in the O.P.P.D. "Nukes for Nebraska" program.

Perhaps I'm just not as bright as some members of the council, but it looked to me as if the only change in the proposal they accepted last Monday was that instead of refusing to buy a fixed amount of power for an undetermined cost, they have now agreed to buy an undetermined amount of power for a fixed cost. Try as I will, I just can't see the difference between the six eggs in the one basket and the half-dozen in the other.

Neither, apparently, can council members Cook, Baker and Sikyta, who voted in favor of both proposals. Nor could council members Bailey, Denney and Robinson, who voted against both proposals. It would appear that the only member of the council capable of splitting this particular hair is Councilman Jeanbey, since it is his changed vote that swung the proposal from defeat to victory.

Maybe The Star could arrange to ask him: "In what way is buying an undetermined amount of power at a fixed cost better than buying a fixed amount of power at an undetermined cost?"

Maine Farmers Riled

CALIFORNIA — In a classic case of "Washington knows best," Big Government (with a nudge from Big Labor) is telling the independent-minded people of Aroostook County, Maine, what's good for them.

For generations, the citizens of Aroostook, America's largest potato-growing county, have had to work hard and fast each year to harvest their crop before the long winter sets in. Everyone joins in, grown-ups and youngsters alike. In fact, nearly two-thirds of the harvesters are kids of the county. They earn money, of course, but virtually everybody in the county believes that the harvest experience has an even more important aspect:

"It's a vital part of the process of learning responsibility and the satisfaction and independence that come from working."

Curiously, Washington now wants to do away with the Aroostook tradition on the grounds that work is bad for youngsters.

Child labor in industry was banned by congress nearly 30 years ago. Few would argue that decision. Agriculture was exempted from the ban, though, until last year when Congress tacked a little-noticed rider to the minimum wage bill, ruling out agricultural work for youngsters.

Aroostook County people were furious. John Moores, a potato farmer, put it bluntly when he told a reporter, "Whatever happened to the belief that this country was built on hard, honest work? That you work for what you get and that work builds character?

REP. COHEN stresses family unity

"These are the values the whole country's losing. We've kept them here in Maine and now some know-nothings down in Washington are trying to tell us what we've done for generations is wrong."

Congress had good intentions (as it often does), but with even results (which it often gets). With urging from the AFL-CIO, congress was setting out to prevent exploitation of children in the harvesting of some crops. It probably didn't cross anyone's mind to study the situation in Aroostook County or in Washington state, where students traditionally pitch in with the strawberry harvest.

One Washington observer

called it a classic example of the application of broad-brush national standards where local differences should be considered instead.

Aroostook citizens have marched and testified against the measure, with no success thus far. The House Agriculture Labor subcommittee voted to waive the ban in the case of both Aroostook and the Washington strawberry pickers. But, Big Labor leaned hard on congressmen in his debt on the full House Labor Committee, and that group turned down the waiver nearly 2 to 1. Thus, Big Labor proved it can be just as insensitive as Big Government when it comes to understanding that Americans weren't all stamped out of cookie-cutters.

Rep. William Cohen of Maine, summed it up effectively: "These people are hardworking, decent, self-sufficient. The family is still a strong unit and the harvest has always been a family effort."

"It's really a shame to start destroying that type of life-style and spirit and philosophy, especially when there's no social advantage to doing it and the use of child labor wasn't abused in the first place."

Those values he's speaking about undergird the whole nation's heritage, of course, and have had a lot to do with the productive genius of the American people. Apparently, though, too many on Capitol Hill these days are marching to a different drummer.

The Dirtiest Business

WASHINGTON — We recently described a whole arsenal of eavesdropping devices, which the government uses to spy on private citizens.

We neglected to mention that the government has set the style for the commercial world as well. As one observer put it, modern science has made snooping "the fastest growing but dirtiest business in the world."

Michigan Blue Cross and Blue Shield, for example, uses elaborate equipment to monitor telephone calls from the public. Unknown to the callers, supervisors at Blue Cross listen in on the telephone conversations between its service representatives and private citizens.

Other Michigan companies, such as Montgomery Ward, Sears and even Michigan Bell itself, eavesdrop on telephone callers.

In Georgia, firms using telephone monitoring equipment at least are required to register with the state. The public is alerted by an asterisk, which is placed next to the firm's name in the phone book.

Among the companies marked with an asterisk are Greyhound Bus, Georgia Power, Pan American Airways and Delta Air Lines.

Informed sources tell us there is massive use of monitoring devices by private companies. These not only are used to overhear telephone conversations; businessmen also place tens of thousands of bugs in competitors' showrooms, insurance offices, lawyers' offices, hotel rooms and elsewhere.

Legal experts believe this electronic surveillance may be a violation of the individual's constitutional right to privacy. This is the view of Dale Kildee, a Michigan state senator, who conducted his own investigation of electronic monitoring.

He warned: "Big Brother doesn't just jump in with a big splash. Big Brother creeps in and then he's there." Big Brother, of course, was the ever-present, all-seeing, all-knowing eavesdropper in George Orwell's concept of 1984.

In more ways than one, 1984 is getting closer.

FOOTNOTE: The companies mentioned in this report claim they employ telephone monitoring to improve their service. A spokesman for Michigan Blue Cross, for example, confirmed that the company has been monitoring calls for 10 or 15 years. The service representatives are aware of the monitoring but the public is not, he said. The eavesdropping is used "for quality control purposes only," he emphasized.

Fourth, House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino, who has been bottling up necessary bankruptcy legislation so that he can never be accused of greasing the city's skids, will — with great reluctance — report out the bill that should have been on the House floor weeks ago.

Then — and this is less certain — the Congress may pass unnecessary legislation to guarantee city indebtedness, in order to elicit the promised Ford veto and prove to some constituents that some congressmen wanted to "save" New York. But it will be so chockful of punitive controls that even New York congressmen will gag at the prospect.

Sixth, the realization will dawn that there was never much difference between the home rule given up to a federal board of overseers (as envisioned by the guarantee enthusiasts) and the home rule handed over to a federal bankruptcy judge. In both cases, the city admits incompetence and receives protection.

Then, with good sense and some good humor, the city's power brokers will appear and make the deals needed for union officials to say "not my fault" to their members, and bankers to say "don't blame us" to investors. The sense of helplessness and the foretaste of doom will recede when the fact is accepted that the buck ends in New York.

"Maybe you'd like to stand this in front of some other city"

Especially when the federal government, having made its proper federalist point in turning down the takeover of a unit of local government, does in fact what it hates to admit in philosophy: make sure "essential services for the protection of life and property in New York are maintained." Sen. James L. Buckley saw to that.

Beyond keeping cops on the beat, an infusion of federal money to help the city pay its current debt will be forthcoming. Ford talked only of

"debt certificates . . . paid out of future revenues" but I'm told this means that the national government will buy those bonds and make it possible for the city to redeem them with future revenue-sharing funds. That is a way of providing the turnaround money — the "bailout" — while maintaining the stern expression of Uncle Skinfint.

The city, if it defaults, will accept the name but not the shame of bankruptcy. We will not see the panic, the rippling rhythm, the general strikes, or all the thousand unnatural shocks we have been promised by worried and harried men.

Grumbling, muttering under their breath, New Yorkers will patch together the beginnings of a way out. Life won't be the same in City Hall, and investors will have to wait longer for their full payout, but the city's residents have resources of pride, courage and stoicism — even selflessness — that have been too long untapped.

New York is being given the fact but not the appearance of federal help. This will force the city to heroic efforts of self-help, which is a healthy atmosphere for financial and cultural creativity.

For a time, New York politicians will unload their frustrations on Gerald Ford. But before this decade ends, a reinvigorated and solvent city will thank him for not postponing the necessary day of reckoning, and for refusing to allow the nation's first city to sell the local sovereignty of its citizens for a mess of federal guarantees.

Facing The Realities

I have been following The Star's articles in reference to and about the activities of Senator Ernest Chambers, Sherdell Lewis and Deputy Sheriff Rod Loos. It has been most entertaining.

The articles create heated discussions, facts and fiction of what actually happened, figments of imagination, and super rumors, which idle minds send flowing vividly throughout the city.

Never fear, Senator Chambers is always near, ready to pounce on the establishment, demanding justice from anyone who will hear him scream. The godfather of all black men and women, demanding their rights be honored and the Constitution of this great country be upheld to the fullest. Granted, I couldn't agree with him more on the rights of the people of this country.

Mr. Chambers is using the black people and the incidents that they may be involved in. This seems to get lots of publicity from the press, and before the case is ever revealed, they have the alleged officer involved convicted of a crime. The only thing they haven't got to as yet is the location of the hanging — which cottonwood tree to use and who is to furnish the rope. Perhaps Mr. Chambers can finance the rope through the Nebraska Legislature?

I don't know all the circumstances involved in the Sherdell Lewis incident. I don't live in Lincoln. If that officer were wrong, then he should be prosecuted, but if he is innocent, let's get off his back!

Let's be realistic in what we expect of our law-enforcement officers. What is the officer in these situations supposed to do — be shot and possibly killed first? That sounds great, if you're not the officer.

The death of Sherdell Lewis was a reality. The plight of Deputy Sheriff Rod Loos is a reality. When the American people start dealing with fact as opposed to fiction, the quality of life and the quality of police service become a reality.

Evening Council Sessions

I was appalled by the recommendation made Monday by City Council members Cook and Sikyta to do away with evening City Council sessions. Instead of eliminating the one evening meeting a month, the elected officials should schedule all their weekly sessions during the evening.

Public participation is greatly hindered when the council meetings are held in the early afternoon. Many interested citizens cannot leave their jobs to attend; the audience is then composed mostly of paid lobbyists for special interests.

It is my hope that the other City Council members recognize the importance of citizen participation and that they will move to increase rather than decrease the opportunity for citizens to appear before the City Council to be heard.

A Half-Dozen And Six

I noticed in Tuesday's Star that the Lincoln City Council had reconsidered its previous reconsideration of the motion it defeated concerning participation in the O.P.P.D. "Nukes for Nebraska" program.

Perhaps I'm just not as bright as some members of the council, but it looked to me as if the only change in the proposal they accepted last Monday was that instead of refusing to buy a fixed amount of power for an undetermined cost, they have now agreed to buy an undetermined amount of power for a fixed cost. Try as I will, I just can't see the difference between the six eggs in the one basket and the half-dozen in the other.

Neither, apparently, can council members Cook, Baker and Sikyta, who voted in favor of both proposals. Nor could council members Bailey, Denney and Robinson, who voted against both proposals. It would appear that the only member of the council capable of splitting this particular hair is Councilman Jearney, since it is his changed vote that swung the proposal from defeat to victory.

Maybe The Star could arrange to ask him: "In what way is buying an undetermined amount of power at a fixed cost better than buying a fixed amount of power at an undetermined cost?"

Maine Farmers Riled

CALIFORNIA — In a classic case of "Washington knows best," Big Government (with a nudge from Big Labor) is telling the independent-minded people of Aroostook County, Maine, what's good for them.

For generations, the citizens of Aroostook, America's largest potato-growing county, have had to work hard and fast each year to harvest their crop before the long winter sets in. Everyone joins in, grown-ups and youngsters alike. In fact, nearly two-thirds of the harvesters are kids of the county. They earn money, of course, but virtually everybody in the county believes that the harvest experience has an even more important aspect:

"It's a vital part of the process of learning responsibility and the satisfaction and independence that come from working."

Curiously, Washington now wants to do away with the Aroostook tradition on the grounds that work is bad for youngsters.

Child labor in industry was banned by congress nearly 30 years ago. Few would argue that decision. Agriculture was exempted from the ban, though, until last year when Congress tacked a little-noticed rider to the minimum wage bill, ruling out agricultural work for youngsters.

Aroostook County people were furious. John Moores, a potato farmer, put it bluntly when he told a reporter, "Whatever happened to the belief that this country was built on hard, honest work? That you work for what you get and that work builds character?

"These are the values the whole country's losing. We've kept them here in Maine and now some know-nothings down in Washington are trying to tell us what we've done for generations is wrong."

Congress had good intentions (as it often does), but with uneven results (which it often gets). With urging from the AFL-CIO, congress was setting out to prevent exploitation of children in the harvesting of some crops. It probably didn't cross anyone's mind to study the situation in Aroostook County or in Washington state, where students traditionally pitch in with the strawberry harvest.

One Washington observer

called it a classic example of the application of broad-brush national standards where local differences should be considered instead.

Aroostook citizens have marched and testified against the measure, with no success thus far. The House Agriculture Labor subcommittee voted to waive the ban in the case of both Aroostook and the Washington strawberry pickers. But, Big Labor leaned hard on congressmen in his debt on the full House Labor Committee, and that group turned down the waiver nearly 2 to 1. Thus, Big Labor proved it can be just as insensitive as Big Government when it comes to understanding that Americans weren't all stamped out of cookie-cutters.

Rep. William Cohen of Maine, summed it up effectively: "These people are hardworking, decent, self-sufficient. The family is still a strong unit and the harvest has always been a family effort."

"It's really a shame to start destroying that type of life-style and spirit and philosophy, especially when there's no social advantage to doing it and the use of child labor wasn't abused in the first place."

Those values he's speaking about undergird the whole nation's heritage, of course, and have had a lot to do with the productive genius of the American people. Apparently, though, too many on Capitol Hill these days are marching to a different drummer.

The Dirtiest Business

WASHINGTON — We recently described a whole arsenal of eavesdropping devices, which the government uses to spy on private citizens.

We neglected to mention that the government has set the style for the commercial world as well. As one observer put it, modern science has made snooping "the fastest growing but dirtiest business in the world."

Michigan Blue Cross and Blue Shield, for example, uses elaborate equipment to monitor telephone calls from the public. Unknown to the callers, supervisors at Blue Cross listen in on the telephone conversations between its service representatives and private citizens.

Other Michigan companies, such as Montgomery Ward, Sears and even Michigan Bell itself, eavesdrop on telephone callers.

In Georgia, firms using telephone monitoring equipment at least are required to register with the state. The public is alerted by an asterisk, which is placed next to the firm's name in the phone book.

Among the companies marked with an asterisk are Greyhound Bus, Georgia Power, Pan American Airways and Delta Air Lines.

Informed sources tell us there is massive use of monitoring devices by private companies. These not only are used to overhear telephone conversations; businessmen also place tens of thousands of bugs in competitors' showrooms, insurance offices, lawyers' offices, hotel rooms and elsewhere.

Legal experts believe this electronic surveillance may be a violation of the individual's constitutional right to privacy. This is the view of Dale Kildee, a Michigan state senator, who conducted his own investigation of electronic monitoring.

He warned: "Big Brother doesn't just jump in with a big splash. Big Brother creeps in and then he's there." Big Brother, of course, was the ever-present, all-seeing, all-knowing eavesdropper in George Orwell's concept of 1984.

In more ways than one, 1984 is getting closer.

FOOTNOTE: The companies mentioned in this report claim they employ telephone monitoring to improve their service. A spokesman for Michigan Blue Cross, for example, confirmed that the company has been monitoring calls for 10 or 15 years. The service representatives are aware of the monitoring but the public is not, he said. The eavesdropping is used "for quality control purposes only," he emphasized.

KINGSBURY SMITH

War Or Liberal Reform?

ROME — What happens in Spain will now depend to a very great extent on the Spanish army and the character of Prince Juan Carlos, the 37-year-old king-designate.

If discipline is maintained in the army and it backs the young king-to-be, Spain may be spared another horrible civil war and it may gradually move towards democratic liberalization.

If there is a split in the army between the younger, more liberal-minded officers and the fascist-type generals of the Franco regime, the country could be plunged into civil war, or at least into the undisciplined military and political turmoil that plagues Portugal.

If the army fails to support Juan Carlos, he will be king in little more than name and his reign is likely to be short-lived.

The moment of truth is at hand for the handsome, 6-foot-2, athletic descendant of the Bourbons. There is even uncertainty, though it is considered slight, as to whether he will be proclaimed king.

Under the mechanism of succession decreed by Generalissimo Franco, it will take eight days from his death for the transition formalities to be completed. During that time the ambitious family of Franco may try to block Juan Carlos from ascending the Spanish throne. The family is known to prefer the Duke of Cadiz, Alfonso de Bourbon Dampierre. A cousin of Juan Carlos, the duke is married to Franco's granddaughter.

If that plot fails and Juan Carlos becomes king, the next test may come between the new monarch and the hardliners of the old regime, especially in the military leadership. It will be a question of whether Juan Carlos has the courage and willpower to risk a showdown on the issue of liberal reform with the old guard leaders who are solidly installed in the state machinery, and whether he will gain sufficient popular support to enable him to do so successfully.

Seldom has a man called to be leader of his country aroused such contradictory judgments as has Juan Carlos. Scoffed at by critics as a weak Franco puppet who lacks the charisma to inspire popularity, he is considered by friends to be highly intelligent with qualities of leadership and personality that will surprise many when he is no longer bound by the restrictions Franco imposed on him.

In an interview with William Randolph Hearst Jr., editor-in-chief of the Hearst Newspapers, and the writer earlier this year, the probably future king made it clear he intended to be a strong, progressive leader when he ascends the throne.

Within the privacy of his office in La Quinta-El Pardo Palace on the outskirts of Madrid, the grandson of the last king of Spain shows no reticence in saying to visitors what he was never allowed by Franco to say publicly in Spain. He told us he was determined to bring about liberal reforms, though he thinks the changes must come gradually and not be attempted overnight so as to avoid the danger of a violent clash between extremists of the right and left.

He said he wants the political structure of Spain to be based on democracy and not dictatorship. He is committed to a constitutional, not authoritarian, monarchy, though he intends to make full use of the power granted to him under the constitution established by Franco. As king, he will be chief of the armed forces and will have the right to choose the prime minister from three names submitted to him by a council of state.

He knows the majority of the people, and especially the youth, wants a liberalization of the regime. He feels it is necessary to "march with the times, and listen to the youth." He points out that 60% of the present Spanish population was born after the civil war of the '30s, and he is convinced the overwhelming majority of the people do not want to see a recurrence of that terrible time.

"Peace, unity and modernization are what the people wish," he said recently. "Those are the great tasks of our generation."

Juan Carlos believes he can count on the younger officers in the armed forces to support him. He has kept in close touch with those with whom he served in the army, navy and air force during his military training. He has consulted them frequently concerning the post-Franco era and claims that he is guided by their advice.

As for the older captains-general of the military commands, "that," in his words, "is another matter." They consider him too liberal.

If Juan Carlos, who as prince projected the image of a modest, quiet, serious-minded young man, displays strong, progressive leadership as king and can rely on the support of the Spanish army, he might have a long reign.

Revenue Committee Advances Exon's Tax Bill

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon's package of budgetary legislation, one aspect of which was rebuffed by the Appropriations Committee, Thursday won a vote of confidence from the Revenue Committee.

By a 5-2 vote, the Revenue Committee advanced to the floor of the Legislature LBA, which Exon administration officials said is needed to avoid a dramatic increase in 1976 sales and income taxes.

LBA allows the state's tax rate setter, the State Board of Equalization, to ignore temporarily a statutory requirement that the board tack a 5% budgetary cushion onto anticipated expenditures when setting the tax rates.

Voting to advance LBA were Sens. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha, Bill Skarda of Omaha, Orval Keyes of Springfield, James Dickinson of Millard and Ron Cope of Kearney. Donald Dworak of Columbus and committee chairman Cal Carsten of Avoca dissented. Committee member Dennis Rasmussen of Scottia was absent.

The action followed two days of hearings which often developed into a political debate about who is responsible for the cash shortage anticipated by the state for next year.

Republican national committeewoman Pat Lahr Smith and state Republican Party chairman Anne Batchelder, who did needlepoint on a red elephant during the hearings, attended both days but did not testify.

Critics of the Exon administration charged the dilemma would not exist if Exon had followed the law and considered anticipated but unappropriated expenditures in setting tax rates.

Exon's supporters, on the other hand, countercharged that the state's financial problems were brought on by the decision by the three-man Republican majority on the Board of Equalization to cut taxes on two occasions over Exon's objections.

State Tax Commissioner Bill Peters told the committee that it is "quite true" that there is sufficient blame for the problem to spread around.

However, he challenged remarks by a Republican Board of Equalization member that Peters' failure to supply information on anticipated but unappropriated expenditures accounted for the income tax cuts.

Peters said they have access to the state's computer and have some staff to make projections.

If Exon's legislative package is not passed, Peters said he will recommend to the board that the sales tax rate be upped from 2 1/4% to 3% for next year. The income tax he said, would have to rise from the present 12% of federal individual income tax to between 16% and 18%.

Had the Legislature taken Exon's advice this past spring and allowed the board to raise the income tax to 13% for 1975 the state could have gotten by without a special legislative session, he said. Still, he said, it would have been tense.

Eldin Ehrlich, legislative fiscal analyst, said he doubted a 13% income tax rate for 1975 would have solved the problem.

Ehrlich said his projections indicated the state could get through 1975 with a 12% income tax. Senators based their decision to impose the 12% limit based on that, he said, adding that it held true.

However, he said he foresaw the financial problems for 1976. That advice was ignored, he said.

"Our basic concern was whether or not the (12%) level of taxes would get us through until the next legislative session," Ehrlich said.

Varner Opposes NU Budget Cut, Offers Alternative

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Instead of sustaining a "severely crippling" budget reduction, the University of Nebraska can adjust expenditures to help ease the state general fund past its crucial cash flow problems in January and February, President D. B. Varner said Thursday.

If it is given legislative authority, Varner told the Unicameral's Appropriations Committee, the university can achieve a temporary savings of approximately $3 million in general fund money during that period.

The authority would include an increase in cash and revolving fund ceilings permitting the institution to spend tuition funds beyond the level anticipated in the 1975-76 budget.

NU has almost 3,000 more students than had been anticipated when the budget was prepared.

Under Varner's proposal, which closely matches a plan promoted by Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney, the university would utilize non-general fund money before turning to the state tax supported general fund for expenditures.

The temporary savings would help the state meet its cash flow problems. The state treasury now faces a number of months, beginning in January, when its general fund balance is insufficient to meet obligations.

In order to meet the cash flow problem and reduce anticipated 1976 tax rates, Gov. J. James Exon has proposed a number of legislative actions, including a 3% reduction in general fund agency budget appropriations for the current fiscal year.

That essentially represents a 5% reduction since the fiscal year is already four months consumed, Varner said.

"I see no way for the University of Nebraska to absorb a 5% budget reduction at this time of year without severely crippling the university's programs," he said.

If it were directed, Varner said, he would recommend to the Board of Regents that selected programs be entirely eliminated rather than weaken all programs through a reduced level of funding.

The proposed reduction at the university totals $2.3 million.

Varner said now is "an especially awkward moment" for the university to face budget cuts since it is searching for a number of major officers, including a new chancellor at Lincoln, a new vice chancellor for agriculture and a new dean of the College of Arts and Science at Lincoln.

"As a matter of fact, one of the most attractive possibilities for the vice chancellor for agriculture position was on campus this week, and he pressed me very hard on the meaning of the action which you are considering today," Varner told the committee.

"This will undoubtedly be a major factor in our ability to recruit and retain the quality of people necessary to make the university as effective as it can be on its three campuses and throughout the state."

Varner said NU is attempting to absorb even larger increases in utility costs than it had anticipated and "a monumental increase in the cost of malpractice insurance."

Another unanticipated burden is the $3,000 additional students beyond enrollment estimates, he said.

The College of Medicine in Omaha already faces a near $1 million shortfall because of the discontinuance of some federal grants at the Medical Center, he said.

Several student representatives also addressed the committee, suggesting that budget cuts would damage their educational opportunities.

Faculty numbers might be decreased while classes are either cancelled or increased in size, they said.

Peters Warns Agencies Payroll May Not Be Met

State agency heads have been advised that the state may not be able to meet its payroll in late January, if Gov. J. James Exon's proposed package of budget legislation is not enacted.

NCLU Elects New Directors

The Nebraska Civil Liberties Union elected four new members to its board of directors at the organization's annual meeting held in Omaha Oct. 25.

New members elected to three-year terms were Kandra Hahn and David Levine, both of Lincoln; and Delores Cardonal, Grand Island. Christopher Beutler of Lincoln was elected to a one-year term.

Re-elected to three-year terms were Nan Hahn and Louisa Dixon, both of Omaha; and James Cole, Lincoln. Larry Myers of Lincoln and Fred Simon of Omaha were re-elected to one-year terms.

Paperwork Costly

Washington (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress for $6 million more to pay for additional expenses of the federal commission on paperwork.

State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters confirmed Thursday that he was met with a group of agency directors to explain possible impact the state's budget crunch may have on payrolls.

"We may have to delay the payroll in late January," Peters said, if the financial picture is not altered.

"We anticipate problems meeting payroll or some other transfers, if no action is forthcoming," he said.

One of the bills before the special legislative session would allow the administration set priorities for payments in the event of a cash shortage.

Currently, Peters said, payments are made on a first-come-first-serve basis. The proposed legislation would set the state payroll as the top priority for payment.

Peters noted that a number of large payments, including school aid, aid to cities and counties and homestead exemption reimbursements, are due in January.

Peters projections indicate that the state will be $11.5 million short in January if Exon's bills are not passed and the state rate remains steady.

Varner Opposes NU Budget Cut, Offers Alternative

By DON WALTON

Instead of sustaining a "severely crippling" budget reduction, the University of Nebraska can adjust expenditures to help ease the state general fund past its crucial cash flow problems in January and February, President D. B. Varner said Thursday.

If it is given legislative authority, Varner told the Unicameral's Appropriations Committee, the university can achieve a temporary savings of approximately $5 million in general fund money during that period.

The authority would include an increase in cash and revolving fund ceilings permitting the institution to spend tuition funds beyond the level anticipated in the 1975-76 budget.

NU has almost 3,000 more students than had been anticipated when the budget was prepared.

Under Varner's proposal, which closely matches a plan promoted by Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney, the university would utilize non-general fund money before turning to the state tax supported general fund for expenditures.

The temporary savings would help the state meet its cash flow problems. The state treasury now faces a number of months, beginning in January, when its general fund balance is insufficient to meet obligations.

In order to meet the cash flow problem and reduce anticipated 1976 tax rates, Gov. J. James Exon has proposed a number of legislative actions, including a 3% reduction in general fund agency budget appropriations for the current fiscal year.

That essentially represents a 5% reduction since the fiscal year is already four months consumed, Varner said.

"I see no way for the University of Nebraska to absorb a 5% budget reduction at this time of year without severely crippling the university's programs."

If it were directed, Varner said, he would recommend to the Board of Regents that selected programs be entirely eliminated rather than weaken all programs through a reduced level of funding.

The proposed reduction at the university totals $2.3 million.

Varner said now is "an especially awkward moment" for the university to face budget cuts since it is searching for a number of major officers, including a new chancellor at Lincoln, a new vice chancellor for agriculture and a new dean of the College of Arts and Science at Lincoln.

"As a matter of fact, one of the most attractive possibilities for the vice chancellor for agriculture position was on campus this week, and he pressed me very hard on the meaning of the action which you are considering today," Varner told the committee.

"This will undoubtedly be a major factor in our ability to recruit and retain the quality of people necessary to make the university as effective as it can be on its three campuses and throughout the state."

Varner said NU is attempting to absorb even larger increases in utility costs than it had anticipated and "a monumental increase in the cost of malpractice insurance."

Another unanticipated burden is the 3,000 additional students beyond enrollment estimates, he said.

The College of Medicine in Omaha already faces a near $1 million shortfall because of the discontinuance of some federal grants at the Medical Center, he said.

Several student representatives also addressed the committee, suggesting that budget cuts would damage their educational opportunities.

Faculty numbers might be decreased while classes are either cancelled or increased in size, they said.

Peters Warns Agencies Payroll May Not Be Met

State agency heads have been advised that the state may not be able to meet its payroll in late January, if Gov. J. James Exon's proposed package of budget legislation is not enacted.

NCLU Elects New Directors

The Nebraska Civil Liberties Union elected four new members to its board of directors at the organization's annual meeting held in Omaha Oct. 25.

New members elected to three-year terms were Kandra Hahn and David Levine, both of Lincoln; and Delores Cardonal, Grand Island. Christopher Beutler of Lincoln was elected to a one-year term.

Re-elected to three-year terms were Nan Hahn and Louisa Dixon, both of Omaha; and James Cole, Lincoln. Larry Myers of Lincoln and Fred Simon of Omaha were re-elected to one-year terms.

Paperwork Costly

Washington (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress for $6 million more to pay for additional expenses of the federal commission on paperwork.

State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters confirmed Thursday that he was met with a group of agency directors to explain possible impact the state's budget crunch may have on payrolls.

"We may have to delay the payroll in late January," Peters said, if the financial picture is not altered.

"We anticipate problems meeting payroll or some other transfers, if no action is forthcoming," he said.

One of the bills before the special legislative session would allow the administration set priorities for payments in the event of a cash shortage.

Currently, Peters said, payments are made on a first-come-first-serve basis. The proposed legislation would set the state payroll as the top priority for payment.

Peters noted that a number of large payments, including school aid, aid to cities and counties and homestead exemption reimbursements, are due in January.

Peters projections indicate that the state will be $11.5 million short in January if Exon's bills are not passed and the state rate remains steady.

Judge's Error Frees 3 Accused Of Assault

Omaha (AP) — An apparent misunderstanding led to the freedom of the alleged assailants of Mr. and Mrs. David Rinehart of Omaha.

On the night of Aug. 9, the Rineharts were camping on a Platte River sandbar near the Two Rivers recreation area.

Three men had been arrested, but the case was dismissed because the Rineharts hadn't been informed of the date, and were not in court.

The county attorney's office has decided to re-file charges against the three, but deputies can't find them.

The Rineharts said that shortly after midnight, while camping, they felt someone stumble over the tent — a member of a group of men they had seen earlier in the evening.

Rinehart said "they started making remarks that they were going to attack us and rape my wife. I picked up my hunting knife and they backed off."

The Rineharts went to get a deputy sheriff. The deputy's report said when they returned, their camp was in flames and some of their things were missing.

A half-mile away, the deputy found the camp of the alleged assailants and the Rineharts identified some of their possessions there.

Three men, 19 through 21, were arrested and charged with possessing stolen property, the strongest charge the county attorney's office said it could prove.

Extended Forecasts

NEBRASKA Mostly sunny Sunday. Partly cloudy Monday and Tuesday. Warm days and cool nights. Highs mostly 60s. Lows mostly 30s.

Deputy County Attorney Daniel Ryberg said the case was postponed from one court appearance date so the three could get an attorney. On the next scheduled date, the three appeared, deciding to proceed without an attorney, and demanded a trial then—telling County Judge Robert McGowan he had "promised" them a trial that day.

It turned out that date was scheduled for an arraignment, not the trial, but the judge didn't have that notation on court documents. An amended charge had been filed against the three, and that document—the one the judge had—didn't say whether there was to be a trial or arraignment that day.

Ryberg said the Rineharts weren't called in because he had not expected the trial until a later date.

Judge McGowan said he asked Ryberg to see if he could get the witnesses there, but the deputy county attorney didn't think he could on that short notice.

So he moved to dismiss the charges, and McGowan approved.

Rinehart found out about the dismissal a few days later from a deputy.

Ryberg said warrants have been issued for the arrest of the alleged assailants, and there is no double jeopardy preventing a trial.

The three were identified as Dennis Confare, Larry Hoff and David Augustine, all of whom gave what police believe to be false addresses.

Giraffes Added To Omaha Zoo

Omaha (AP) — Two young giraffes have become Nebraska residents, the first of their kind in the state. They were welcomed Wednesday at the Henry Doorly Zoo in Omaha. The two year-old animals are a gift from the Owen Foundation, headed by Edward F. Owen, chairman of the board of the Omaha Zoological Society.

Blue Hill OKd For Flood Insurance

New York (UPI) — The Webster County, Neb., village of Blue Hill has been added to the list of those eligible for government subsidized flood insurance offered through the National Flood Insurers Association. The association said Thursday the Royal-Globe Insurance Co., Kansas City, Mo., would act as the insurer for Blue Hill residences and business.

Jessen Farms Top Buyer

Alliance (AP) — Jessen Farms Inc. purchased 1,600 acres of 2-720 offered for sale at auction Wednesday by the Diocese of Grand Island. Jessen Farms paid an average $283.50 per acre. The largest amount paid per acre for a tract of land was $420 for 160 acres.

Sherman County Board To Decide Sheriff's Bond

Loup City (AP) — District Judge S.S. Sidner Thursday dissolved a restraining order he issued last Friday, apparently clearing the way for Bill Whear to take office as Sherman County sheriff.

The order had prevented the County Board from approving a bond for Whear, the Loup City police chief, after his apparent victory over incumbent Sheriff Virgil Kaminsky in a recall election Oct. 21.

The board is scheduled to meet tomorrow to approve the bond, after which Whear will take office.

Sherman County Attorney Fred King said the matter still is not closed since an election challenge has been filed by Kaminsky's attorneys. They charge irregularities in conduct of the election and attack the recall petition which brought the voting, alleging incorrect form and invalid signatures.

The challenge case has been continued by Sidner and no date for trial has been set

Woman, 100, Lives Day To Day

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Tecumseh — How does anyone manage to live to be 100? Mrs. Jessie Campbell insists you "don't manage it at all, you just live from day to day." Passing up "such awful things as drinking and smoking" may also have helped in her case.

The alert centenarian will be honored at a Friday afternoon birthday party—her second celebration this week—at the Presbyterian Church where she has been a member some 70 years. There also was a public reception for her Sunday at the Tecumseh Care Center where she is the senior of 73 residents.

Though confined to a wheel chair, she is in relatively good health. She and her late husband, onetime Johnson County Judge Walter Campbell, had observed their 70th wedding anniversary in 1971.

Born in Brooklyn, she came with her family at age 10 to a Johnson County farm. She has lived in or near Tecumseh ever since, including four years while she taught elementary school as a young woman.

"The population changes so much that the only people I know now are those belonging to my church or club," she noted. She is still a member of the Acme Club and PEO as well as the church.

Despite being a staunch Republican, she was less excited about a congratulatory card from President Ford than having her three children home for her Friday birthday. They are son Donald of San Francisco and daughters Mrs. Roger Peterson of Gothenburg and Mrs. Mildred Hill of Tecumseh. She also has five grandchildren, 17 great-grandchildren and two great-greats.

Kidded about being a Halloween baby, she said this has never been a matter of concern. She chuckled at a reporter's suggestion that she's now old enough to return to her Brooklyn birthplace—a spot she has never re-visited.

"I prefer my Tecumseh," she quipped. "After staying here practically all my life, I certainly don't intend to leave now."

Athletic Policy Charge Is Disputed

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Fairbury — An official of Southeast Community College's Fairbury campus says that board member Loretta Draper "apparently is misinformed" about the school's athletic scholarship policy.

C. L. Grovert, now director of student services following 29 years as athletic director, particularly challenged her comments that the school had fully subsidized athletes staying in the dormitory before football was discontinued two years ago.

The Plattsmouth woman had intimated that, except for athletic scholarships, the dorm would have had financial problems even when it experienced high occupancy. "At no time in the history of this school have we ever given one dime toward an athlete's board and room," said Grovert. "Our policy, both past and present, was to provide no more than tuition and book loan under any scholarship."

Speaking before the Nebraska Coordinating Commission for Technical Community Colleges, Mrs. Draper had suggested that indebtedness on the Fairbury dormitory might force the closing of the campus irrespective of a proposed move to Beatrice's Pershing. Debt service on the dorm, which has a current occupancy of about 40%, is $32,000 annually.

Noting that the 1975 enrollment is down "an insignificant 1.1% from last year," Grovert insists the financial situation is not serious enough to consider closing.

Take Up Slack

"I know we could take up the slack in enrollment and fill the dorm again if the board would just give us new programs as it had pledged," he said. "It's awfully hard to recruit students when we keep getting adverse statements even from our own board members."

As examples of possible programs, Grovert said proposals for agri-business and law enforcement-criminal justice had been presented to the board. Both apparently were rejected, he continued, "because I never heard of them again."

The moving of 12 faculty and administrative offices into the dormitory also should "go a long way" toward the annual debt service, the official noted.

He explained that SeTech will in effect be paying rent on the space (3,000 square feet) which will apply toward the debt service.

County Agent Is Recognized By Association

North Platte—Roy Stohler, Dixon County Extension agent and area youth specialist in northeast Nebraska, was recognized here by the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Association for outstanding contributions to the Nebraska 4-H program. He will receive a distinguished service award next week from the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents during the annual meeting at Louisville Ky.

Also honored during the NCEA meet was Kenneth G. Schmidt, associate state 4-H leader at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, who received a distinguished service award for state specialists.

Thirty-two Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service staff members received federal length-of-service awards at the meeting.

Receiving 35-year awards were Agnes L. Arthaud, associate director of the NCES; A. Neil Dawes, Jefferson County Extension agent; and Victor B. McClure, Gage County Extension agent.

Executive Director Of ENCOR Offers Her Resignation To Exon

Omaha (UPI) — The executive director of the Eastern Nebraska Community Office of Retardation (ENCOR) offered to resign because Gov. J.J. Exon apparently has "a vendetta against me."

Linda Glenn said she sent a message to Exon offering to resign if he would provide financial help to the state's community based mental retardation programs.

Leave State

She said she would leave the state if necessary if Exon "hates me so much personally that he's taking it out on the programs."

"I will be glad to leave the state," she said, "if he'll help the programs. Let's not hurt the kids because of that."

Exon criticized ENCOR's operations during a news conference in Omaha Tuesday, and Ms. Glenn said she heard the governor criticize her personally during a meeting Tuesday evening with the Nebraska Association for Retarded Children.

Exon said in Lincoln he had nothing personally against Ms. Glenn, but she and others "spend too much time denouncing the Beatrice State Home."

Exon referred specifically to Ms. Glenn's reported criticism of the death of 7-month-old retarded boy at the Beatrice home. He said her statements "left the implication" the child's death Saturday was partially the fault of the home or because of a lack of funding.

No Money

Ms. Glenn said she didn't mean to imply the home was at fault, but did say the child was sent to Beatrice because ENCOR didn't have the money to accept new clients because Exon has cut back its funding.

Elmer Wyant, Beatrice State Home superintendent, said from Beatrice that accusations about the child's death were "regretted and are always a bad experience."

Wyant said the child, who was taken to Beatrice Friday, arrived in a "very fragile" condition.

Millard Public Schools Seeks Reimbursement

The Millard Public Schools has filed suit against the State Board of Education, seeking reimbursement for excess costs it spent for special education programs under LB403.

Millard is asking for $115,026 as a "valid expense in providing services to children." The Papillion Schools also have requested $46,221 in reimbursement for excess costs not permitted by State Department of Education rules, and reimbursement for funds lost through proration.

LB403 was intended to pay school districts 90% of the costs exceeding regular per-pupil outlay, in providing special education programs. Insufficient appropriations were prorated among the districts.

The department responded, saying, "The amounts requested are in excess of the approved budget, (which) shall not be reimbursed by the State Department of Education. The loss through proration is the result of a legislative decision and therefore does not involve the State Board."

ABP Begins Defense

Omaha (UPI) — An undicted co-conspirator in the American Beef Packers Inc. case testified Thursday communications between ABP and its mainline creditor were severely strained shortly before ABP filed limited bankruptcy on Jan. 7.

Lowell Smith, Olathe, Kan., former ABP cash controller, testified he believed General Electric Credit Corp. shorted ABP of several million dollars in available funds beginning on Dec. 30, 1974 and continuing through Jan. 6.

On Dec. 31, Smith said he submitted two funding requests, one for $5.1 million and the other for $4.6 million to GECC as part of ABP's daily lending requirements.

Request Expected Refused
Smith said he "didn't really expect to get" the $5.1 million "but I felt I needed it to take care of the cash situation that day." Smith said the $4.6 million figure was the "amount we understood what our availability showed."

However, a wire transfer to Northwestern National Bank later that day, Smith said, showed ABP had been "shorted by $1.4 million."

Smith said GECC "explained to me that's all we were going to get."

On Jan. 6, Smith said he estimated ABP's requirement for GECC funds at $5.3 million, but the meatpacker only received $3.1 million. He said $80,000 of that was used to pay interest payments at the Northwestern National Bank in Omaha.

Smith said Northwestern National usually collected its interest payment on the 20th of the month.

'No Other Way'

Because of the fund shortage, Smith said there was "no other way out" but to order checks written to livestock feeders on banks in Seattle, Wash., and Winston-Salem, N.C. returned without payment.

When a $3.5 million funding diversion by ABP against GECC was discovered on Dec. 13, Smith said GECC dispatched personnel to Omaha and they personally opened up ABP's accounts receivable mail daily after that.

Under government cross-examination, Smith said he couldn't provide financial figures for Dec. 27 or 28 "because of communications problems with GECC."

Discrepancies Sought
The government was attempting to show Smith's figures were different from GECC's and no money shortage on GECC's part had, in fact, actually occurred.

Smith said the figures indicated ABP should have been able to borrow $1.1 million on the loan, but in reality, received only $610,000 from Northwestern National.

Smith further testified ABP had a "lot of problems in the timing of (money) wire transfers" from GECC. He said on a "number of occasions" the wire transfers from GECC for one day didn't arrive in the designated banks until the next.

He said he didn't tell anyone to "hide" the funding diversion from GECC, and later added "we didn't want to advertise it either."

On Oct. 17, Mrs. Gail R. Keenan, a former employee in ABP's accounts receivable department, said on instructions from Smith she delivered the GECC deposits to Northwestern National instead of to the Omaha National Bank.

Smith said prior to Christmas of last year, William Edwards, then ABP treasurer, discussed the possibility of filing bankruptcy, but Smith said at the time, he thought the firm's condition wouldn't reach the point to require such action.

Denney recessed court until Monday, since he has three cases to hear in Lincoln on Friday.

The defense for ABP Board Chairman and President Frank R. West, ABP and Beefland International Inc., Council Bluffs, Iowa, an ABP subsidiary, said it expected to finish its case by next Tuesday evening.

The government said at present it plans to present no further evidence following the defense presentation.

ABP Begins Defense

Omaha (UPI) — An unindicted co-conspirator in the American Beef Packers Inc. case testified Thursday communications between ABP and its mainline creditor were severely strained shortly before ABP filed limited bankruptcy on Jan. 7.

Lowell Smith, Olathe, Kan., former ABP cash controller, testified he believed General Electric Credit Corp. shorted ABP of several million dollars in available funds beginning on Dec. 30, 1974 and continuing through Jan. 6.

On Dec. 31, Smith said he submitted two funding requests, one for $5.1 million and the other for $4.6 million to GECC as part of ABP's daily lending requirements.

Request Expected Refused
Smith said he "didn't really expect to get" the $5.1 million "but I felt I needed it to take care of the cash situation that day." Smith said the $4.6 million figure was the "amount we understood what our availability showed."

However, a wire transfer to Northwestern National Bank later that day, Smith said, showed ABP had been "shorted by $1.4 million."

Smith said GECC "explained to me that's all we were going to get."

On Jan. 6, Smith said he estimated ABP's requirement for GECC funds at $5.3 million, but the meatpacker only received $3.1 million. He said $80,000 of that was used to pay interest payments at the Northwestern National Bank in Omaha.

Smith said Northwestern National usually collected its interest payment on the 20th of the month.

'No Other Way'

Because of the fund shortage, Smith said there was "no other way out" but to order checks written to livestock feeders on banks in Seattle, Wash., and Winston-Salem, N.C. returned without payment.

When a $3.5 million funding diversion by ABP against GECC was discovered on Dec. 13, Smith said GECC dispatched personnel to Omaha and they personally opened up ABP's accounts receivable mail daily after that.

Under government cross-examination, Smith said he couldn't provide financial figures for Dec. 27 or 26 "because of communications problems with GECC."

Discrepancies Sought

The government was attempting to show Smith's figures were different from GECC's and no money shortage on GECC's part had, in fact, actually occurred.

Smith said the figures indicated ABP should have been able to borrow $1.1 million on the loan, but in reality, received only $610,000 from Northwestern National.

Smith further testified ABP had a "lot of problems in the timing of (money) wire transfers" from GECC. He said on a "number of occasions" the wire transfers from GECC for one day didn't arrive in the designated banks until the next.

He said he didn't tell anyone to "hide" the funding diversion from GECC, and later added "we didn't want to advertise it either."

On Oct. 17, Mrs. Gail R. Keenan, a former employee in ABP's accounts receivable department, said on instructions from Smith she delivered the GECC deposits to Northwestern National instead of to the Omaha National Bank.

Smith said prior to Christmas of last year, William Edwards, then ABP treasurer, discussed the possibility of filing bankruptcy, but Smith said at the time, he thought the firm's condition wouldn't reach the point to require such action.

Denney recessed court until Monday, since he has three cases to hear in Lincoln on Friday.

The defense for ABP Board Chairman and President Frank R. West, ABP and Beefland International Inc., Council Bluffs, Iowa, an ABP subsidiary, said it expected to finish its case by next Tuesday evening.

The government said at present it plans to present no further evidence following the defense presentation.

Californian Enters Guilty Plea

M. Norvell Young, 59, the chancellor of Pepperdine University in California, pleaded guilty Thursday to misdemeanor manslaughter charges arising from a fiery automobile accident Sept. 18 which killed a Lincoln woman.

Christine Dahlquist, 81, of Lincoln died four days after the accident near Malibu, Calif. Beulah Harrison, 55, of Claremont, Calif. died in the crash.

The California Highway Patrol said a car driven by Alice Fritsche, 55, of Claremont had stopped on the Pacific Coast Highway in Malibu when it was struck from behind by Young's car. The gas tank in Mrs. Fritsche's car exploded, engulfing both cars in flame.

Both Young and Mrs. Fritsche were injured in the crash and hospitalized.

Young had been charged with two counts of felony manslaughter and one count of drunken driving in the accident. The charges were reduced to a misdemeanor manslaughter charge against Young, who remained free on $5,000 bail.

Judge Mario L. Clinko of the Superior Court in Santa Monica, Calif. accepted Young's guilty plea and ordered him to return Dec. 4 for sentencing.

The charge carries a possible one-year sentence in the county jail or five years in state prison.

Californian Enters Guilty Plea

M. Norvell Young, 59, the chancellor of Pepperdine University in California, pleaded guilty Thursday to misdemeanor manslaughter charges arising from a fiery automobile accident Sept. 18 which killed a Lincoln woman.

Christine Dahlquist, 81, of Lincoln died four days after the accident near Malibu, Calif. Beulah Harrison, 55, of Claremont, Calif. died in the crash.

The California Highway Patrol said a car driven by Alice Fritsche, 55, of Claremont had stopped on the Pacific Coast Highway in Malibu when it was struck from behind by Young's car. The gas tank in Mrs. Fritsche's car exploded, engulfing both cars in flame.

Both Young and Mrs. Fritsche were injured in the crash and hospitalized.

Young had been charged with two counts of felony manslaughter and one count of drunken driving in the accident. The charges were reduced to a misdemeanor manslaughter charge against Young, who remained free on $5,000 bail.

Judge Mario L. Clinko of the Superior Court in Santa Monica, Calif. accepted Young's guilty plea and ordered him to return Dec. 4 for sentencing.

The charge carries a possible one-year sentence in the county jail or five years in state prison.

The world is filled with thingamajigs, doohickies and whatchamacallits.

And they all have perfectly good names that we'd use if we cared anything for preciseness in our language. But what can you expect from people who consistently say they could care less when they mean they couldn't?

Fellow Americans, it's time to call a flange a flange.

Go To Mirror

Go to a mirror, open your mouth and take a long look at that little piece of flesh that hangs down above the back of your tongue. It may not seem important now, but what if it swells up, turns green or just disappears someday?

When you tell your doctor that the thingamabob in your throat is gone, he's going to do the natural thing. Raise his rates and tell you it's serious.

But if you tell him something has happened to your uvula — well, the man has to respect you.

It's A Philtrum

Before you leave the mirror take a look at that vertical groove that runs down the middle of your upper lip. It's called a philtrum. Don't worry — you couldn't expect to know unless you've read Atlas of the Mouth.

As for why it's there and what it's for — perhaps that's a question better left for theologians.

You're ready for more advanced stuff.

What do you do if you take your kids to a museum and one of them comes running up to you shouting that he's seen a beaver?

He's Smarter

Believe him. The kid is obviously smarter than you are. A beaver is that movable piece of armor on the lower part of a medieval helmet, and he knows it.

WHAT IS IT? ... Lincoln Telephone Co. provided answer.

If he starts rambling on about gorgets, pauldrons, tassels, crusses and greaves, the kid's a winner. You guessed it — all medieval doojiggers.

By the way, those things you've been calling faucets all your life really aren't. If the nozzle is bent downward, they are more properly called bibcocks. Remember, you heard it here first.

Now for a tough one that you come up against every day. What's that little metal thing called that your finger hits when you dial a telephone?

Don't Look It Up

The answer won't be found in dictionaries, almanacs, encyclopedias, home repair manuals or the telephone book. "Finger break?" offers a colleague.

For this one, you have to go right to the source — a secretary at Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph.

"A finger stopper?" she offers in a voice that questions the caller's sanity. "Just a minute. Let me check and see if we have a better name for it."

The envelope please. And the winner is: dial stop.

Are there more of these doohickies that should be unveiled? You bet your cuticle. And if the thingamajig on this typewriter ...

Worm Farm Is 'Lucrative'

Denver (UPI) — Lori Savari and Gloria Parker boast an annual $85,000 income from the loving nurture and sale of millions of hybrid red worms to bait stores, trout hatcheries and frog farms.

Mrs. Savari started the business after being frustrated on fishing trips by the lack of bait.

Now, she said, "I'm making more than I ever did in my life. I'm my own boss and I really enjoy the work."

Sold Out Soon

Starting with a $12 order of 5,000 worms, Mrs. Savari advertised her wares to Colorado sellers and was sold out with the first order. After three years of successful worm ranching, Mrs. Parker joined as a partner in Frontier Farms.

"It's a funny business," said Mrs. Parker. "People either laugh when you tell them what you do or they get angry and think you're putting them on."

She said her 14-year-old daughter's first reaction was, "Ugh! Mother!"

Job Is Challenging

Worm farming has its challenges, according to the two women, who have found that their charges do best in racks of horse manure and wood shavings and prefer dining on a blend of rabbit and dairy cow manure.

"After they've gorged themselves, the worms also produce a fine, black, odorless humus just loaded with nitrogen and potassium," Mrs. Parker said. "Organic gardeners want a lot of worms because of it."

One of the beauties of worm farming is that each animal is bisexual and the animals double in number every 60 days. Mrs. Savari said the biggest problem is keeping the animals alive.

"If you don't take care of your worms, they won't take care of you," said Mr. Parker, adding that moisture and chemicals must be kept at certain levels or the crawlers perish.

The women plan to expand their operation, renting the building next to their warehouse farm which houses their wares. They are also encouraging others, promising a $19,500 first year profit from a paltry 50,000 worm start.

Despite the numbers in their business, Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Savari said they are fond of the worms which send many people screaming.

"We get quite attached to them as we tend them," Mrs. Parker said. "No one would believe it, but we may drop one on the floor and pick it up and say, 'Oh, you poor little thing!'"

It's Just An Act

dear

DEAR ABBY: Ron and I have been married for five years and have a child who is 3-years-old. Last week, we went to an amusement park and decided to take in the big attraction there. (It was Fifi La Belle and her star-studded review.) We got a table in the front of the auditorium so we wouldn't miss a thing.

Fifi came out in a very revealing costume, and she spotted Ron immediately. (He's very good-looking.) She came over to our table and sat down on Ron's lap and ignored me as though I were invisible. She sang to Ron and made a big fuss over him. He claimed he didn't like it, but I noted he didn't push her off his lap. I laughed along with the rest of the audience, but while Fifi was on my husband's lap, I was burning up with jealousy.

She ruined my whole day. Should I have pushed her off Ron's lap? I know it wasn't his fault that she picked on him, but if he didn't like it, don't you think he should have pushed her off?

STILL BURNING
DEAR STILL: It's not unusual for a female entertainer to single out a man and make a fuss over him. It's part of the act and nothing personal. Forget it, dear. Next time, don't pick a ringside table, and you'll not be so vulnerable.

DEAR ABBY: Last week, I went to a luncheon at a neighbor's home. She kept chasing her 5-year-old son outside. Once, when he refused to leave, she picked up the telephone and dialed, whereupon the child took off, running in fear.

I laughed and asked, "Are you pretending to call his father?" "No," she replied, "I'm calling the witch!" She explained that she calls the witch to "come and get him" when he's "bad." Then, she asked me not to tell him there was no such thing as a witch.

I was appalled and told her that when he son gets older and realizes that she's been lying to him, he won't trust her here anymore. She then commented that she didn't care what he thought in the future because it worked for now!

Abby, how do you feel about using these scare tactics to discipline children?

1. The best way of trying to avoid a heart loser is to aim for a dummy reversal. Ruff the spade high and cash the 9-J of clubs.

If the trumps are divided 3-2, ruff the eight of spades (let's assume the ace doesn't fall), play a diamond to the jack, and ruff the spade king with your last trump. Now lead a diamond to the queen, cash the queen of clubs, discarding your heart loser, and the rest are yours.

If, after playing the 9-J of clubs, you learn that the trumps are divided 4-1, your best shot is to lead four rounds of diamonds, discarding two hearts from dummy, cash the A-K of hearts, and ruff a heart. If all goes well, this method of play also succeeds.

2. This is one of those sure things where the contract is certain to succeed with proper play. Draw trumps and cash the A-K-Q of spades. If the suit is divided 3-3 your worries are over, so let's assume the spades are divided unevenly.

Ruff your last spade and return the diamond three. If South follows low, finesse the eight. Let's say it loses to the nine. North must now either yield a ruff-discard or play a diamond. If he returns a low diamond, insert the ten; if he returns a high diamond, play low from dummy. Either way, you make the slam — even if the diamonds are 4-1.

If South plays the nine, jack or queen on the first diamond lead from dummy, win the ace and return a low diamond. If North follows low, insert the ten; if he follows high, all you lose is one diamond trick. If North shows out on the second diamond lead, play the ten and South must resign.

Excessive Coffee Consumption May Cause Problem Pregnancy

Salt Lake City, Utah (UPI) — Pregnant women who drink more than six cups of coffee a day apparently tend to have miscarriages, fetal deaths and stillbirths, a University of Illinois researcher said.

Paul S. Weathersbee told obstetricians and gynecologists that the apparent connection turned up during a study of the beverage drinking habits of families in Utah and southern Idaho.

Weathersbee surveyed 550 families in which a pregnancy occurred during 1974.

"We found that 13 of the 14 women who said they drink an average of seven cups of coffee or more daily had an unfavorable pregnancy," Weathersbee said.

However, the study was entirely "retrospective" and did not include other factors which might also have affected reproduction.

"Generally, we have found that a person who is that excessive in coffee intake tends to be excessive in other behavior patterns."

OPPD Says It Won't Buy Idea

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer
 The Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) told Lincoln officials Thursday it won't buy the City Council's compromise nuclear power plant deal.
 City Councilman Bob Jeambey said that for all practical purposes, "The matter ended when OPPD said 'no' today."
 OPPD manager Ralph Shaw told Jeambey, Councilman Bob Sikyta and Lincoln Electric System (LES) officials that Lincoln would have to buy a percentage of the Ft. Calhoun No. 2 plant, or buy nothing at all.

Decision Reversed
 On Monday, the council reversed earlier decisions rejecting the Ft. Calhoun deal and placed a $129 million ceiling on LES's participation in the plant.
 Shaw said OPPD still wanted LES as a partner in the plant, along with the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD).
 If Lincoln changed its decision on the dollar limitation, Shaw said he and the OPPD Board would extend the deadline placed on a decision on Lincoln's participation. The deadline was to be Friday.
Two Agree
 Said Jeambey, "They said they want Lincoln in the plant."
 However, Jeambey and Sikyta agreed,

"there was no place to go," because the City Council has been unable to reach an agreement on any other compromise for approving the Ft. Calhoun ownership.
 Jeambey switched his vote Monday when three other lawmakers agreed to place the $129 million ceiling on Lincoln's participation.
 Shaw argued that Lincoln would have to share the risks of nuclear power plant ownership, as well as the benefits, Jeambey said.
Costs Unknown
 And those risks might add to the cost of the Ft. Calhoun No. 2 plant, since Shaw noted that fuel costs are unknown and the interest rate for constructing the plant has increased from 7 1/4% to 8%.
 "Actually, they had many of the same arguments many of the council members had," Jeambey said about the final cost of the project.
 OPPD estimates the plant will cost $810 million by 1983. Shaw told Lincoln representatives that while a 13% ownership in Ft. Calhoun would cost $129 million now, that figure probably will be higher in the future.
Reopening Doubtful
 Jeambey and Sikyta doubted the council would reopen the Ft. Calhoun question "unless there's some other place to go."

The lawmakers didn't think they would find an acceptable alternative.
 OPPD's decision was not unexpected, since the utility and NPPD previously have stated their opposition to any arrangement other than a percentage ownership deal.
 Mayor Helen Boosalis said Thursday night she was not surprised by OPPD's rejection of the council's action.
Action Needed
 Unless the council rescind's its action Monday placing the $129 million ceiling, she still will be required to either sign the ordinance or veto it.
 Mrs. Boosalis declined to reveal which action she'll take.
 In a related development Thursday, nuclear foes urged Mayor Helen Boosalis to veto the City Council's Ft. Calhoun proposal.
 Rich Lombardi and others said in a letter to the mayor that "there would be no reason for conservation or energy alternatives" if LES were allowed to buy all the electricity it proposed to buy.
 The group urged the mayor to impose a two-year moratorium on LES's construction of new generating facilities. Such a moratorium, the nuclear critics argued, would result in a stepped up energy conservation program.

Hansen: Time Needed To Alter Attitudes

"It's going to take some time to change attitudes."
 That's what Lincoln Police Chief George Hansen told members of the Malone Neighborhood Council concerning police community relations during a meeting at the Malone Center Thursday night.
 "We have no objection to meeting with groups like yours, or from any community in this city," Hansen said, "We have to establish some form of communication."
 Hansen revealed some new plans in communications that are being designed to "aid residents in getting to know the police, and the police the neighborhood."
 Primary plans call for the establishment of a resource officer, "the man you get to know in your area," Hansen explained. This system would allow people to "seek out one officer to contact in case of trouble," he added.
 Hansen also announced plans for changing the "chain of command" on the street by assigning several lieutenants to work the street in an attempt to "make decisions in the field."
 He also explained the system of codes that the police use in answering a call, based on the urgency of the situation.
 Hansen was asked why there seems to be so "many police and cruisers" driving through the Malone area.
 "We've got to go where the trouble is," he said, noting that the area from 9th to 33rd Streets and four or five blocks either side of O is responsible for "probably 60% of our work."
 McCool Junction (UPI) — J. C. Purdy Thursday was driving by a neighbor's house when he saw smoke coming from the roof.
 Purdy rushed to the house and led Mrs. Mary Smith, 89, to safety before she was hurt. Mrs. Smith is an invalid and can only get around with the aid of a walker.
 The house was a total loss, and firemen were only able to remove a safe and a bookcase.

Oil Money Invested
 Caracas, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela has invested some of its oil revenues in short and medium term bonds and other financial operations in several countries including Canada and the United States, says Cesar Manduca, general director of the Venezuelan Investment Fund (VIF).
Woman Rescued From Flames

Committee Starts Work On New Health Agency
 A 61-member development committee took the first steps toward the creation of a Health Systems Agency (HSA) for 17 southeast Nebraska counties at an organizational meeting Thursday night.
 The committee created four task forces to plan the legal structure, management, work program and budgeting of the HSA. It also established a membership committee and a steering committee to oversee development of the HSA.
 HSAs are part of a national health planning program established by the 1974 National Health Planning and Resource Development Act.
 They are designed to upgrade health services, improve health in the area they serve, hold down costs and prevent duplication of health services.

On the subject of minority training in the department Hansen noted that sensitivity training is being used to an extent. In addition, he said, "We are trying to get our men to become competent enough in their jobs that they feel confident in any situation they might face."
 Hansen told the group that he would have a team of officers meet with them on a "regular basis," and agreed to meet regularly with the group himself if they desired.

Court: Patch Of Marijuana Not Part Of Man's Castle

By United Press International
The Nebraska Supreme Court said Thursday there's no doubt that a man's home is his castle.
Further, said the high court, constitutional bans against unreasonable search and seizure are enough to render that castle unscalable by law enforcement officers unless they have good cause.
However, the court ruled in the case of an Elm Creek man, those constitutional protections do not extend to cultivated fields of marijuana growing on the grounds of an as yet uncompleted castle.
The Fourth Amendment, the court said, applies to searches of a person or his house, papers or effects.

"This does not encompass a field which is approximately 75 feet behind a house which the defendant had not finished constructing and had not yet moved into," the court said.
In reaching that conclusion in an appeal of a marijuana conviction of Dana Poulson by the Buffalo County District Court, the Supreme Court ruled on a 1984 U.S. Supreme Court decision involving moonshiners.
In that case, when the two men involved found out revenue agents were near their house and they ran from it, in the process dropping two jugs of moonshine whiskey. The jugs were used as evidence.

In that case, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "the special protection accorded by the Fourth Amendment ... is not extended to the open fields."
In Poulson's case, a complaint that he was growing marijuana was filed with the state patrol. Officers went to the house he was building with an arrest warrant but he wasn't there so there was no arrest.

The officers did, however, take pictures of what the court described as "10 neat rows" of marijuana which was being watered with a hose from the house. The officers also took the liberty of harvesting the weed, placing it in plastic bags for use as evidence.
On the basis of that evidence, Poulson was convicted of possession of marijuana with intent to manufacture.
He appealed that conviction saying the Fourth Amendment rendered the evidence used against him illegal.

Court: Salaried Agent Carries More Weight

By United Press International
The Nebraska Supreme Court decided Thursday the testimony of salaried undercover agents should be given more weight in court than testimony by other informers who are paid only to gather evidence against a specific person.
That decision was handed down in the case of Lee Gurule, who was convicted of selling marijuana by the Hitchcock County District Court. He was sentenced to prison terms of 18 months to four years on each count.

Gurule appealed his conviction contending the jury should have been given special cautionary instructions on the weight it should give to testimony by an undercover agent. He also contended the prosecutor acted improperly.
The high court noted that no cautionary instruction is

2 Sentenced To Gallows For Murder

Billings, Mont. (UPI) — Gary Radi, 30, and Bernard J. Fitzpatrick, 34, both of Billings, Wednesday were sentenced to death by hanging for the aggravated kidnapping of a Hardin, Mont., supermarket employee who was murdered last spring.
Judge Nat Allen imposed the death sentences on Radi and Fitzpatrick in Yellowstone County District Court and scheduled the hangings for Dec. 5, "between midnight and dawn."
The two men were convicted last week by a jury that also found them guilty of deliberate homicide and robbery in the death of 18-year-old Monte Dyckman of Hardin on April 5. Allen also sentenced each of the men to 100 years in prison for the homicide conviction and 100 years on the robbery conviction.
The sentences were expected to be appealed.

Lodge News — The "Sunday Journal and Star" has it.

POSTCARD by Stan

San Francisco — When I was pegging rocks at the neighborhood cats, our favorite game was cowboys and Indians. The little kids had to be Indians for in those disintegrated days the Indians always lost.
Eight now skate boards are the fashion — my scatter has donated one chipped tooth to the cause.

I said: "Blast it, be careful! Those are permanent teeth."
For awhile when "Jaws" was at the local theater, everybody wanted to be a shark.

I said: "When a shark loses a tooth he doesn't have to go to a dentist. He grows a new tooth. But you are not a shark."
It seems to me cowboys and Indians was a safer game.

Man is expendable. (Only they're spending me too fast. I said: "Don't yell at me about your homework. I'm joining the French Foreign Legion.")
In an expendable moment last week I bought a case of Sancerre. It's a fruity white wine from France. Around the Loire valley.

Wine has become a power play in the social rambles.
You bring out a bottle and blow the dust off it. (You get a dusty effect by emptying the vacuum cleaner bag over the racked bottles.)
You blow off the dust and say: "I had a feeling this was going to be an outstanding vintage. So I put down a few cases three years ago."

Everybody nods their heads wisely. One up for you.

The skate boarders put down cases of a new ice cream thing called "It's-it." Or rather they wish I would put down a few cases.

I am advised that if I will put down a few "It's-it" cases, I will shine like a star in the eyes of the neighborhood.

Court: Patch Of Marijuana Not Part Of Man's Castle

By United Press International
The Nebraska Supreme Court said Thursday there's no doubt that a man's home is his castle. Further, said the high court, constitutional bans against unreasonable search and seizure are enough to render that castle unscalable by law enforcement officers unless they have good cause.

However, the court ruled in the case of an Elm Creek man, those constitutional protections do not extend to cultivated fields of marijuana growing on the grounds of an as yet uncompleted castle.

The Fourth Amendment, the court said, applies to searches of a person or his house, papers or effects. "This does not encompass a field which is approximately 75 feet behind a house which the defendant had not finished constructing and had not yet moved into," the court said.

In reaching that conclusion in an appeal of a marijuana conviction of Dana Poulson by the Buffalo County District Court, the Supreme Court relied on a 1974 U.S. Supreme Court decision involving moonshiners.

In that case, when the two men involved found out revenue agents were near their house and they ran from it, in the process dropping two jugs of moonshine whiskey. The jugs were used as evidence.

In that case, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "the special protection accorded by the Fourth Amendment . . . is not extended to the open fields."

In Poulson's case, a complaint that he was growing marijuana was filed with the state patrol. Officers went to the house he was building with an arrest warrant but he wasn't there so there was no arrest.

The officers did, however, take pictures of what the court described as "10 neat rows" of marijuana which was being watered with a hose from the house. The officers also took the liberty of harvesting the weed, placing it in plastic bags for use as evidence.

On the basis of that evidence, Poulson was convicted of possession of marijuana with intent to manufacture.

He appealed that conviction saying the Fourth Amendment rendered the evidence used against him illegal.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplana

San Francisco — When I was pegging rocks at the neighborhood cats, our favorite game was cowboys and Indians. The little kids had to be Indians for in those disintegrated days the Indians always lost.

Right now skate boards are the fashion — my scatter has donated one chipped tooth to the cause.

I said: "Blast it, be careful! Those are permanent teeth."

For awhile when "Jaws" was at the local theater, everybody wanted to be a shark.

I said: "When a shark loses a tooth he doesn't have to go to a dentist. He grows a new tooth. But you are not a shark."

It seems to me cowboys and Indians was a safer game.

Man is expendable. (Only they're spending me too fast. I said: "Don't yell at me about your homework. I'm joining the French Foreign Legion.")

In an expendable moment last week I bought a case of Sancerre. It's a fruity white wine from France. Around the Loire valley.

Wine has become a power play in the social ramble.

You bring out a bottle and blow the dust off it. (You get a dusty effect by emptying the vacuum cleaner bag over the racked bottles.)

You blow off the dust and say: "I had a feeling this was going to be an outstanding vintage. So I put down a few cases three years ago."

Everybody nods their heads wisely. One up for you.

The skate boarders put down cases of a new ice cream thing called "It's-it." Or rather they wish I would put down a few cases.

I am advised that if I will put down a few "It's-it" cases, I will shine like a star in the eyes of the neighborhood.

Court: Salaried Agent Carries More Weight

By United Press International
The Nebraska Supreme court decided Thursday the testimony of salaried undercover agents should be given more weight in court than testimony by other informers who are paid only to gather evidence against a specific person.

That decision was handed down in the case of Lee Gurule, who was convicted of selling marijuana by the Hitchcock County District Court. He was sentenced to prison terms of 18 months to four years on each count.

Gurule appealed his conviction contending the jury should have been given special cautionary instructions on the weight it should give to testimony by an undercover agent. He also contended the prosecutor acted improperly.

The high court noted that no cautionary instruction is

2 Sentenced To Gallows For Murder

Billings, Mont. (UPI) — Gary Radi, 30, and Bernard J. Fitzpatrick, 34, both of Billings, Wednesday were sentenced to death by hanging for the aggravated kidnapping of a Hardin, Mont., supermarket employee who was murdered last spring.

Judge Nat Allen imposed the death sentences on Radi and Fitzpatrick in Yellowstone County District Court and scheduled the hangings for Dec. 5, "between midnight and dawn."

The two men were convicted last week by a jury that also found them guilty of deliberate homicide and robbery in the death of 18-year-old Monte Dyckman of Hardin on April 5. Allen also sentenced each of the men to 100 years in prison for the homicide conviction and 100 years on the robbery conviction.

The sentences were expected to be appealed.

required when a regular law enforcement officer is called to testify and generally such an instruction is required in cases involving informers or detectives hired "to hunt up testimony against the accused."

The court admitted the undercover agent involved was not a regular officer, "but he was paid a weekly salary while employed and was not employed to seek evidence against a particular person only."

In other words, the court said, the agent had no more personal interest in supplying evidence against Gurule than regular law enforcement officers would and therefore in such cases no cautionary instruction is required.

Judge Hale McCown disagreed.

"It is wholly illogical to assume that a 'special employee' under the facts here is somehow different from any other paid informer," he said.

The majority also concluded the conduct of the prosecutor was not prejudicial even though he pressed witnesses for answers to questions that each time were thrown out by the district court.

McCown disagreed with that majority conclusion too saying the actions of the prosecutor were an attempt to "inflame the jury" and not build a sound case based on facts.

"A defendant is entitled to a fair trial, even if he is guilty," McCown said.

In other decisions the Supreme Court:

—Upheld the Douglas County District Court's conviction of Willie Franklin of kidnapping, rape and sodomy in connection with an incident involving a 16-year-old girl.

—Dismissed an appeal of a forcible entry case from the Douglas County District Court in a suit brought by First National Bank of Omaha against Ruth and Grady Mitchell.

—Agreed with the decision of the Douglas County District Court to revoke the probation of Charles Jaworski on an original conviction of burglary.

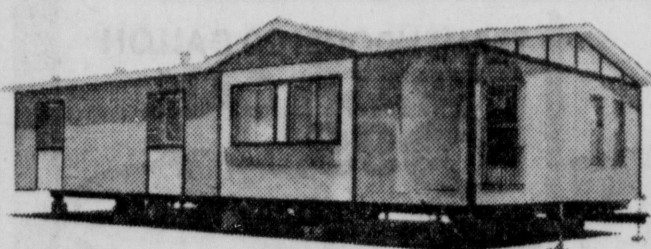

—Upheld the decision of the Douglas County separate juvenile court to place the five minor children of Robert and Violet Norwood in the custody of the county and terminate parental rights.

—Affirmed the Douglas County District Court to accept a guilty plea from Lamont Mitchell to a charge of petty larceny.

—Agreed with the decision of the Scotts Bluff County District Court to dismiss an insurance dispute filed by Gladys Wyatt against Woodmen Accident and Life Co.

—Affirmed the $7,375 judgment in favor of David Burdick in a real estate dispute filed against B. J. Pegram in Lancaster County District Court.

Seven Come Eleven For NU?

Columbia, Mo. — Nebraska's Cornhuskers already have rolled a "seven" in 1976 and Saturday on Missouri's Faurot Field they begin their drive to come up with "eleven."

Saturday's game, in most everybody's opinion, will determine if the Huskers will get a sixth successive bid to play in one of the major bowl games.

The professional oddsmakers say Nebraska by 6. Mort Olshan says NU by 27-13. Fred Rothenberg of Associated Press says Huskers by 28-14 while Herschel Nissenon, also of AP, likes NU by 27-21.

Fans driving here for the game are reminded that the kickoff will be a high noon. If you don't have a ticket, forget it and turn your television set to Channel 7 at 11:30 a.m. It'll be on national TV.

In other Big Eight games, I like Oklahoma over Oklahoma State 35-14, Kansas over Kansas State 24-10, and Colorado over Iowa State 27-14.

California Leads Nation

The NCAA has done a survey which shows the state of California has produced more major college players on 1975 rosters than any other state.

The survey shows 1,307 Californians on the 134 major college rosters. Texas has 1,298 and Ohio is third with 1,233.

Another Ohioan, wingback Kenny Brown, is with the NU varsity. And look for some more Californians to move up next season — split end Tim Smith, defensive tackle Rod Horn and quarterback Mike Kennedy.

California at Berkeley will be the scene of an important game to determine the Pacific-8's representative in the Rose Bowl. It'll be televised following the NU-MU game and I'll take Southern California over Cal.

In the Big Ten, the Big Two (Michigan and Ohio State) will romp while the little eight (some people are calling them the tiny eight) batter each other.

Down in the Southeastern Conference, Alabama will win its 18th consecutive SEC game over Mississippi State. Also, LSU over Mississippi, Florida over Auburn, Tulane in an upset over troubled Kentucky, Vanderbilt over Virginia (the Cavaliers just don't have it this year), and Tennessee to wipe away some of the embarrassment of losing to North Texas State by stopping potentially dangerous Colorado State.

Longhorns Move Along

Texas, which has lost only to Oklahoma, will beat Southern Methodist. Unbeaten Texas A&M is idle. The Longhorns, whose coach Darrell Royal says are his best team in recent years, appear to be headed for a showdown on Nov. 27 at College Station, Tex., against A&M for the Southwest Conference crown and the automatic Cotton Bowl bid.

Elsewhere in the southwest, it's Texas Tech over Rice, Baylor over TCU, and Houston over Cincinnati.

Pennsylvania, which used to be one of the top stat s for producing college talent, still ranks fourth, but the total number of players is only 788. Penn State has some of the better ones, but I'm picking Maryland to surprise the Nittany Lions.

In other eastern action, it's Pittsburgh over Syracuse, Boston College over Miami of Florida, Yale over Dartmouth, Cornell over Columbia, Brown over Princeton, Colgate over Lehigh, Harvard over Penn, Holy Cross over Boston U., and Rutgers over Connecticut.

In the midwest, Notre Dame in a squeaker over Navy, Memphis State over Wichita State, Miami of Ohio over Toledo, Temple over Dayton, and Tulsa over poor Vince Gibson's Louisville team. Vince is 1-6.

In the South: Georgia Tech over Duke, North Carolina over Wake Forest, North Carolina State over South Carolina, Clemson over Florida State, VPI over William & Mary and West Virginia over Kent State.

In the West: Arizona over Brigham Young, Arizona State over Utah, Air Force over Army, New Mexico over Texas-El Paso, San Jose State over Fresno State and Wyoming over Utah State.

Slippery Rock, already assured of a losing season (the Rockets are 2-5), will beat Lock Haven. The Rockets lost to Indiana of Pa. 13-9 last week. They close their season next week against Clarion State on the road.

Tigers Gain Confidence For NU

By BOB OWENS

Columbia, Mo. — Missouri won't be lacking in confidence when the Tigers go up against Nebraska in Saturday's nationally televised Big Eight Conference football game.

Coach Al Onofrio's team got an "ego" boost last Saturday when the defensive unit got back on track and limited Kansas State to just 82 rushing yards and 76 on passes.

Going into the season, Missouri had seven young people to go with senior and Bob McRoberts, cornerbacks Ken Downing and Rob Fitzgerald and middle guard Steve Meyer, the returning starters on defense.

"I think this will be one of the quickest pursuing teams we've had in a long time," Onofrio said before taking his team to open at Alabama. The result there gave the impression Missouri's defensive problems were imagined, not real.

Subsequently, however, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan drove almost at will against the Tigers and fans here started calling the defensive unit "Missouri's swiss-cheese defense."

The Tigers have been saved by an explosive offense, especially in the air, and they go into the Nebraska game with a 5-3 overall record and a 2-1 Big Eight mark.

Steve Piskiewicz is the Big Eight's leading passer with 1,139 yards on 73 completions. He has had a couple of real big afternoons. Against Oklahoma State, he hit 39 of 57 passes for a school record 371 yards and two touchdowns. Then against Colorado, he connected 14 times

Local Clubs Key On Regular Season Finales

By RANDY YORK

With Lincoln East's homecoming Friday night and talk centering on that and next week's state football playoffs, Spartan coach Lee Zentic became a psychologist Wednesday.

Zentic then pasted the signs into each Spartan varsity squadman's locker.

"I don't want to talk about Bellevue, Westside, Grand Island or any of those teams and I don't want my players to either," Zentic says.

"We better be thinking about one thing Friday night and that's Lincoln High," he adds. "If we aren't, we'll get knocked off."

Obviously, the third-ranked Spartans (7-0-2) can't afford any letdown against the Links (1-7) if they want to qualify for next week's Class A playoffs.

Pius Hosts Cathedral

While East bids for that honor at Seacrest Field, Class B's top-rated Pius X (7-0) hopes to secure a playoff berth with a win over Omaha Cathedral (4-4) Friday night at Pius X Stadium.

Veteran Thunderbolt coach Vince Aldrich gave his team two days off last week on Thursday and Friday when Pius was idle and Monday off the week before.

"This time of year, football can get pretty stale," Aldrich says. "It's the same routine all the time. Taking a day or two off helps the kids get their mind off football and they seem to come back a little fresher."

Zentic intends to stay with the normal routine.

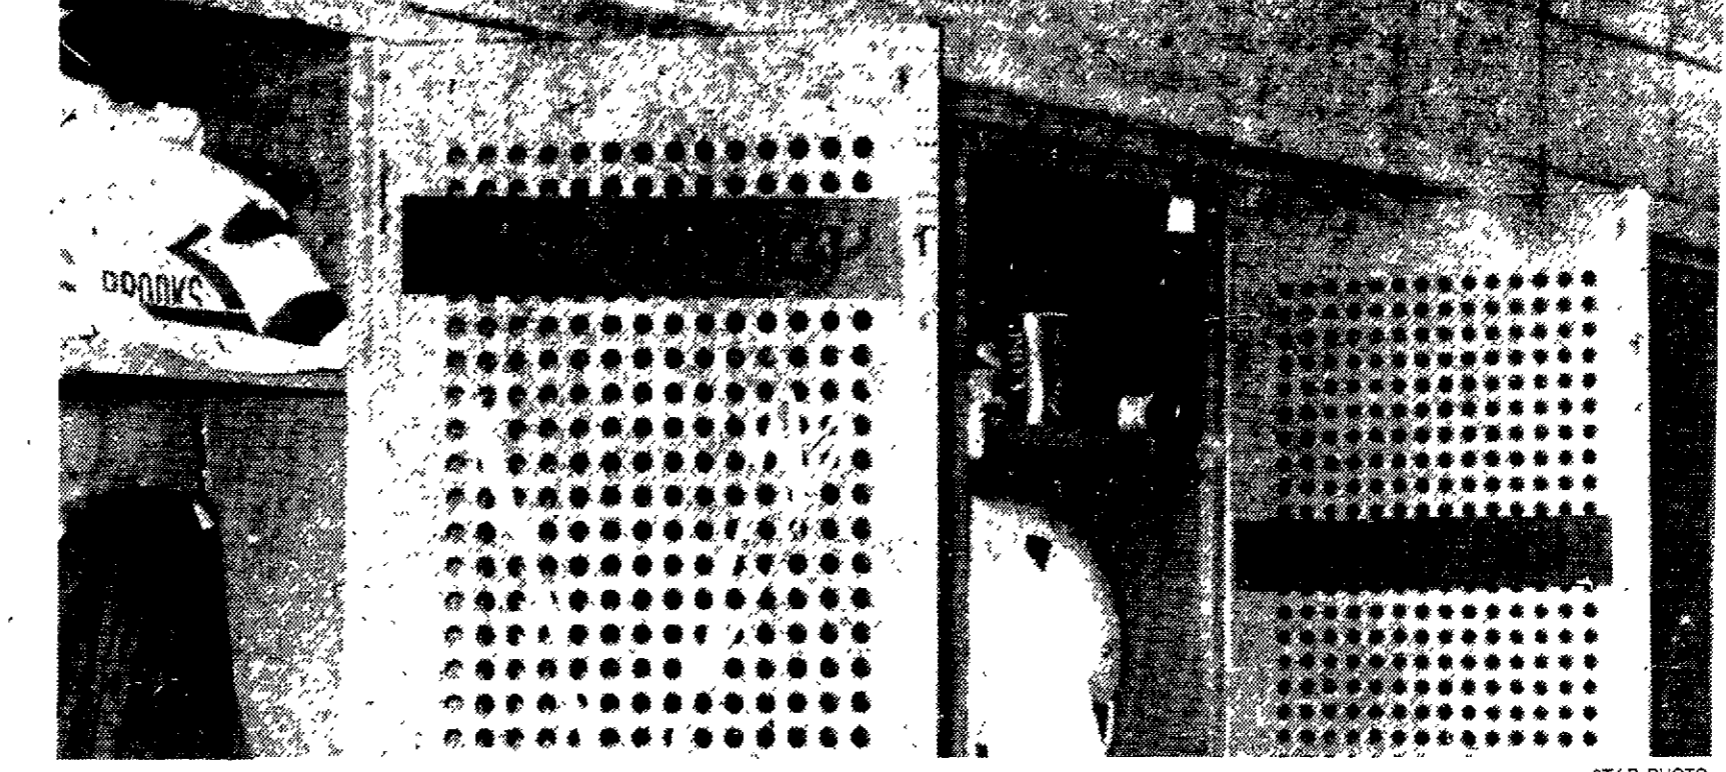

"We've used diversion at this point in the season before and it's best for some teams," Zentic says.

"Some really need a break, but with this team, we're thinking more in terms of keeping the fiddle string tight," adds Zentic.

"We've got so many things we need to continuously work on, we've got to keep things tuned," he says.

"I think a team can get stale, too," offers Zentic. "In the past, we've changed the routine and played volleyball, war ball, soccer, things like that.

Lincoln East's lockers adorned with Lincoln High signs.

Sooners' Brooks To Miss 'Pokes' Game

By Associated Press

Split end Billy Brooks will not suit up for Oklahoma's intrastate rivalry against Oklahoma State Saturday in Stillwater.

The senior split end pulled a hamstring muscle in an earlier practice this week and has not worked out since.

"With Billy out, we will be hampered," admitted coach Barry Switzer Thursday.

The Sooners will start Horace Ivory at fullback Saturday in place of the injured Jim Littrell.

Littrell will make the trip to Stillwater, however.

Kansas

Coach Bud Moore says the final Kansas football workout Thursday for the Kansas State game was a dud.

He also admitted concern over whether several of his injured would be healed in time, specifically defensive end Steve Jones, defensive tackle Franklin King and safety Kurt Knoff.

Noseguard Jim Emerson is definitely out, and the others are doubtful starters at this point, Moore said.

Lindsay Mason, starting offensive tackle, has been out with the flu, but probably will start.

Iowa State

Iowa State put finishing touches on preparations for Saturday's game here against Colorado with a two hour drill Thursday.

"I think we've had a very good week of preparation," said Coach Earle Bruce.

Bruce announced earlier in the week that tight end Dave Greenwood would start at offensive left tackle instead of Pierre Gelinas.

Thursday he said he might start sophomore Kevin Cunningham at offensive right tackle instead of Randy Young but would make a final decision following Friday's brief workout.

UNO Induction Set For Sayers

Omaha (AP) — Athletic director Don Leahy says Roger Sayers will be inducted into the University of Nebraska at Omaha Athletic Hall of Fame.

Sayers is the third of four to be named to the hall.

The fourth will be announced next week and all will be inducted at a banquet Nov. 14.

Sayers was nationally recognized as a track sprinter, but still holds seven school football records.

As a sophomore in 1962, Sayers beat world record-holder Bob Hayes twice in the 100-yard dash and was clocked in .094 seconds while winning that event in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics meet.

Sayers repeated as NAIA champion in 1963 and was selected for the United States team competing in Russia and Poland.

He was elected to the NAIA Track Hall of Fame in 1970.

Short Season

"But this year, it seems like the season is just starting," he says. "It seems like only yesterday that we were preparing to play three games in eight days."

Aldrich initiated his cutting back philosophy seven or eight years ago.

"At this point in the season, we cut the drills short and get them over as quickly as possible," he explains.

"We'll do a certain technique once or twice and if it's right, that's enough," he says.

"We'll do a lot of hitting the ground and rolling over," Aldrich says. "At this time of the year, kids even hesitate sometimes to do that."

"You're afraid to hit and get somebody hurt, so we do more one-on-one agility drills and even go back to the sled for the fundamental stuff," he points out.

Helps Himself

Actually, Aldrich admits cutting workouts may be more of a benefit to himself than anyone. "I don't really know if it's the kids getting tired of the routine or if it's just my getting older and tired myself," he says.

Seventh-ranked Lincoln Northeast joins Pius X and East with a home game this weekend. The Rockets (6-1-1) will try to bounce back from last week's defeat against Grand Island with a Saturday night victory over Ralston (6-2) at Seacrest Field.

Tenth-ranked Lincoln Southeast (4-4) finishes its season on the road Friday night with an Eastern I-80 Conference game at Papillion (4-4).

Nebraska Volleyball On Road

The University of Nebraska volleyball squad travels this weekend to Springfield, Mo., for the Southwest Missouri State University invitational tournament.

The round robin tournament opens Friday with preliminary rounds consisting of two 15-point and/or eight minute games, whichever comes first.

The first four teams will advance into the playoffs. The NU spikers open against the University of Kansas Friday night.

Other teams in the tournament are the host team, Missouri, Illinois, Kansas State, Kansas and Graceland College.

The NU team, with a 13-5 record, has previously met most of the teams in the tourney, but will meet them again in the Region VI tournament for a berth to the national championships.

"We are playing so well now it's exciting," said coach Pat Sullivan. "The team is already talking about nationals."

Sullivan said she hopes the team will hit peak performance during the regional tournament.

"I feel Southwestern Missouri is the only team that can beat us outright," she explained, "but if the team plays up to par in regionals, we'll clinch a spot in the nationals."

Misty Captures City Flag Title

After two years of finishing second, Misty Lounge captured the Lincoln City Recreation's Flag Football title Thursday night by edging Chocolate City, 13-6.

Misty finished the season with a 16-1 record, while handing Chocolate City its first loss against 10 wins.

Taylor Now Third Among Rushers

By RANDY YORK

Prep Sports Editor

For Frank Taylor, it was one giant leap in the state Class A rushing and scoring statistics last week.

Taylor, Omaha North's 6-0, 175-pound senior I-back, used a 340-yard rushing performance against Omaha Ryan to move from a distant fifth to a close second on the Sunday Journal and Star's rushing charts.

He had been more than 31 yards per game off Tim Wurth's blistering 138-yard rushing average. Now, Taylor is less than two yards from Wurth's average as both teams take aim at the final week of the regular season.

Third In Scoring

Taylor took an even bigger jump in the scoring race. Last week, his 40 points couldn't qualify for a top 10 position among the leaders.

But he scored four touchdowns against Ryan and has advanced to third in the point derby, even though his 64 points are far removed from Wurth's 120 and the 88 posted by Ralston's Tim Conway.

Wurth, who has 19 touchdowns and 120 points to his credit in eight games, is seeking his second straight state Class A rushing title.

His last game is Friday night against Omaha Roncalli at Burke. Taylor finishes the season against ninth-rated Omaha Bryan Friday.

Szalewski, Hager Leading

Omaha Gross quarterback Tom Szalewski continues to lead Class A passers with a 107-yard average and Lincoln Southeast's Gary Hager remains the receiving leader with an 84-yard average.

Szalewski and Hager face big season-ending challenges this week in their respective bids to lead Class A passing departments.

Szalewski will throw against a stingy Bellevue defense Saturday night in a Metro Conference game at UNO.

Hager will match his receiving skills against a solid Papillion defense Friday night in an Eastern I-80 Conference contest at Papillion.

SPORTS SIGNALS

Seven Come Eleven For NU?

Columbia, Mo. — Nebraska's Cornhusker already have rolled a "seven" in 1975 and Saturday on Missouri's Faurot Field they begin their drive to come up with "eleven." Should they succeed, the Huskers will spend New Year's Day in Miami, Fla.

Coach Tom Osborne's team, now 7-0 and one of the nation's seven remaining undefeated and untied college football teams, will get No. 8 against the Tigers. Score: Nebraska 24, Missouri 21.

Saturday's game, in most everybody's opinion, will determine if the Huskers will get a sixth successive bid to play in one of the major bowl games. If they win, it figures to boil down to the Oklahoma game in Norman Nov. 22 to determine if it's the Orange Bowl or either the Sugar or Cotton bowls. Let's not even talk about the bowl possibilities in event of a loss.

The professional oddsmakers say Nebraska by 6. Most Olshan says NU by 27-13. Fred Rothenberg of Associated Press says Huskers by 28-14 while Herschel Nissenson, also of AP, likes NU by 27-21. United Press International's Jack Saunders picks Nebraska by 35-7.

Fans driving here for the game are reminded that the kickoff will be a high noon. If you don't have a ticket, forget it and turn your television set to Channel 7 at 11:30 a.m. It'll be on national TV.

In other Big Eight games, I like Oklahoma over Oklahoma State 35-14, Kansas over Kansas State 24-10, and Colorado over Iowa State 27-14.

California Leads Nation

The NCAA has done a survey which shows the state of California has produced more major college players on 1975 rosters than any other state. Two of them, quarterback Vince Ferragamo and tight end Larry Mutschinski, will be in the limelight for the Huskers Saturday.

The survey shows 1,307 Californians on the 134 major college rosters. Texas has 1,298 and Ohio is third with 1,233. Nebraska has no starters from Texas or Ohio, but they will in a year or so. Now playing and starring for Coach Jim Ross' unbeaten freshman team are defensive end-linebacker Larry Cole of Ohio and I-back Richard Berns and defensive tackle Keith Bishop of Texas.

Another Ohioan, wingback Kenny Brown, is with the NU varsity. And look for some more Californians to move up next season — split end Tim Smith, defensive tackle Rod Horn and quarterback Mike Kennedy.

California at Berkeley will be the scene of an important game to determine the Pacific-8's representative in the Rose Bowl. It'll be televised following the NU-MU game and I'll take Southern California over Cal. Also in the Pac-8, it'll be Washington State over Oregon, Stanford over Oregon State and UCLA over Washington.

In the Big Ten, the Big Two (Michigan and Ohio State) will romp while the little eight (some people are calling them the tiny eight) batter each other. It's Michigan over Minnesota and Ohio State over Indiana. Then Wisconsin over Illinois, Michigan State over Purdue and Northwestern over Iowa. Take a look at Mort Olshan's comment on the Backeyes in Pigskin Prophecy.

Down in the Southeastern Conference, Alabama will win its 18th consecutive SEC game over Mississippi State. Also, LSU over Mississippi, Florida over Auburn, Tulane in an upset over troubled Kentucky, Vanderbilt over Virginia (the Cavaliers just don't have it this year), and Tennessee to wipe away some of the embarrassment of losing to North Texas State by stopping potentially dangerous Colorado State.

Longhorns Move Along

Texas, which has lost only to Oklahoma, will beat Southern Methodist. Unbeaten Texas A&M is idle. The Longhorns, whose coach Darrell Royal says are his best team in recent years, appear to be headed for a showdown on Nov. 27 at College Station, Tex., against A&M for the Southwest Conference crown and the automatic Cotton Bowl bid.

Elsewhere in the southwest, it's Texas Tech over Rice, Baylor over TCU, and Houston over Cincinnati.

Pennsylvania, which used to be one of the top states for producing college talent, still ranks fourth, but the total number of players is only 788. Penn State has some of the better ones, but I'm picking Maryland to surprise the Nittany Lions.

In other eastern action, it's Pittsburgh over Syracuse, Boston College over Miami of Florida, Yale over Dartmouth, Cornell over Columbia, Brown over Princeton, Colgate over Lehigh, Harvard over Penn, Holy Cross over Boston U., and Rutgers over Connecticut.

In the midwest, Notre Dame in a squeaker over Navy, Memphis State over Wichita State, Miami of Ohio over Toledo, Temple over Dayton, and Tulsa over poor Vince Gibson's Louisville team. Vince is 1-6.

In the South: Georgia Tech over Duke, North Carolina over Wake Forest, North Carolina State over South Carolina, Clemson over Florida State, VPI over William & Mary and West Virginia over Kent State.

In the West: Arizona over Brigham Young, Arizona State over Utah, Air Force over Army, New Mexico over Texas-El Paso, San Jose State over Fresno State and Wyoming over Utah State.

Slippery Rock, already assured of a losing season (the Rockets are 2-5), will beat Lock Haven. The Rockets lost to Indiana of Pa. 13-9 last week. They close their season next week against Clarion State on the road.

Tigers Gain Confidence For NU

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Columbia, Mo. — Missouri won't be lacking in confidence when the Tigers go up against Nebraska in Saturday's nationally televised Big Eight Conference football game.

Coach Al Onofrio's team got an "ego" boost last Saturday when the defensive unit got back on track and limited Kansas State to just 92 rushing yards and 76 on passes. They had been dented by Colorado 31-20 the previous week.

Going into the season, Missouri had seven young people to go with senior end Bob McRoberts, cornerbacks Ken Downing and Rob Fitzgerald and middle guard Steve Meyer, the returning starters on defense.

"I think this will be one of the quickest pursuing teams we've had in a long time," Onofrio said before taking his team to open at Alabama. The result there gave the impression Missouri's defensive problems were imagined, not real.

Subsequently, however, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan drove almost at will against the Tigers and fans here started calling the defensive unit "Missouri's swiss-cheese defense."

The Tigers have been saved by an explosive offense, especially in the air, and they go into the Nebraska game with a 5-2 overall record and a 2-1 Big Eight mark.

Steve Pisarkiewicz is the Big Eight's leading passer with 1,139 yards on 72 completions. He has had a couple of real big afternoons. Against Oklahoma State, he hit 20 of 27 passes for a school record 371 yards and two touchdowns. Then against Colorado, he connected 14 times in 28 attempts for 264 yards. Missouri has a solid kicking game, led by punter Jim Goble, who is averaging 41.6 yards. The Tigers also are adept at returning punts — something Nebraska opponents have been unable to do very much this season.

Top returner is Leo Lewis, a freshman who also is MU's No. 3 quarterback. He has returned 11 punts 151 yards for an average of 13.7 yards every time he gets his hands on the ball. He has a long return of 51 yards.

Nebraska opponents have been able to return just 10 times for 33 yards, 24 of those yards by Oklahoma State.

So, if the offenses are even and the defenses equal, Saturday's game could be decided like it is so many times — by the kicking game.

The Cornhuskers will arrive here via United Airlines charter at 2 p.m. and plan to workout on Faurot Field at 3 p.m. They'll headquarter at the Holiday Inn-West.

Because of the telecast on ABC-TV, the kickoff has been moved back to noon.

The long-range weather forecast is for mild temperatures with a slight chance of showers at the kickoff.

The Missouri football team concluded its week's preparations for Nebraska with a review Thursday of the Tigers' basic offensive, defensive and kicking game.

Tailback Tony Galbreath, who has been nursing a sore ankle for three weeks, participated in the entire practice and looked to be in fine condition.

"Tony seemed to run pretty good," said coach Al Onofrio. "The ankle still has some soreness, but it's a lot better."

Local Clubs Key On Regular Season Finales

With Lincoln East's homecoming Friday night and talk centering on that and next week's state football playoffs, Spartan coach Lee Zentic became a psychologist Wednesday.

He enlisted the help of East's audio visual center for 40 black and red signs with two words — Lincoln High.

Zentic then pasted the signs into each Spartan varsity squadman's locker.

"I don't want to talk about Bellevue, Westside, Grand Island or any of those teams and I don't want my players to either," Zentic says.

"We better be thinking about one thing Friday night and that's Lincoln High," he adds. "If we aren't, we'll get knocked off." Obviously, the third-ranked Spartans (7-0-2) can't afford any letdown against the Links (1-7) if they want to qualify for next week's Class A playoffs.

Pius Hosts Cathedral

While East bids for that honor at Seacrest Field, Class B's top-rated Lincoln Pius X (7-0) hopes to secure a playoff berth with a win over Omaha Cathedral (4-4) Friday night at Pius X Stadium.

Veteran Thunderbolt coach Vince Aldrich gave his team two days off last week on Thursday and Friday when Pius was idle and Monday off the week before.

"This time of year, football can get pretty stale," Aldrich says. "It's the same routine all the time. Taking a day or two off helps the kids get their mind off football and they seem to come back a little fresher."

Zentic intends to stay with the normal routine.

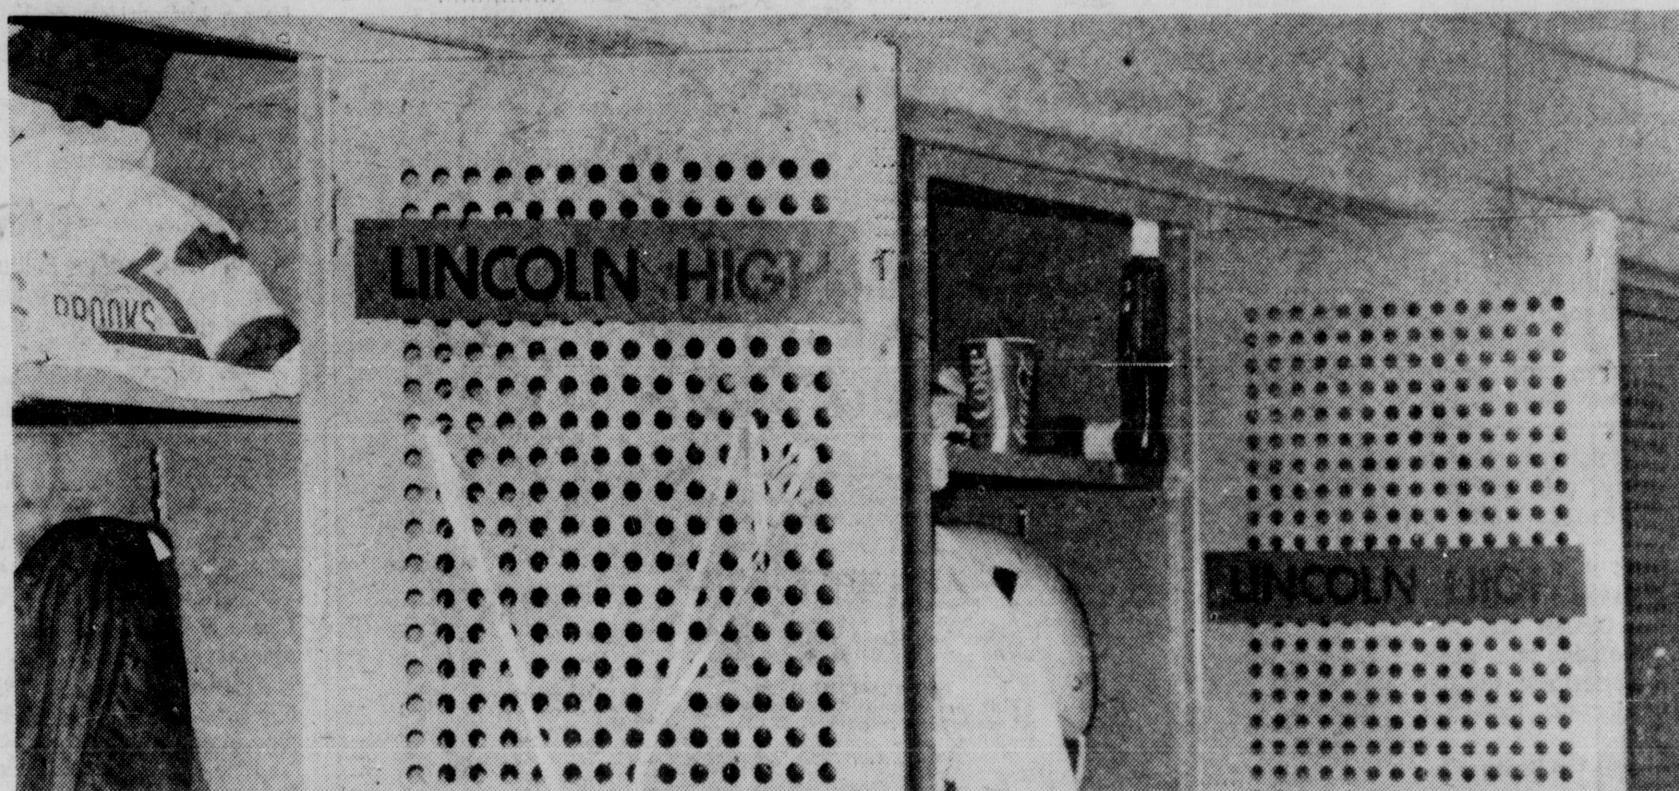

"We've used diversion at this point in the season before and it's best for some teams," Zentic says.

"Some really need a break, but with this team, we're thinking more in terms of keeping the fiddle string tight," adds Zentic.

"We've got so many things we need to continuously work on, we've got to keep things tuned," he says.

"I think a team can get stale, too," offers Zentic. "In the past, we've changed the routine and played volleyball, war ball, soccer, things like that."

Sooners' Brooks To Miss 'Pokes' Game

By Associated Press

Split end Billy Brooks will not suit up for Oklahoma's intrastate rivalry against Oklahoma State Saturday in Stillwater.

The senior split end pulled a hamstring muscle in an earlier practice this week and has not worked out since.

"With Billy out, we will be hampered," admitted coach Barry Switzer Thursday.

The Sooners will start Horace Ivory at fullback Saturday in place of the injured Jim Littrell.

Littrell will make the trip to Stillwater, however.

Kansas

Coach Bud Moore says the final Kansas football workout Thursday for the Kansas State game was a dud.

He also admitted concern over whether several of his injured would be healed in time, specifically defensive end Steve Jones, defensive tackle Franklin King and safety Kurt Knoff.

Noseguard Jim Emerson is definitely out, and the others are doubtful starters at this point, Moore said.

Lindsay Mason, starting offensive tackle, has been out with the flu, but probably will start.

Iowa State

Iowa State put finishing touches on preparations for Saturday's game here against Colorado with a two hour drill Thursday.

"I think we've had a very good week of preparation," said Coach Earle Bruce.

Bruce announced earlier in the week that tight end Dave Greenwood would start at offensive left tackle instead of Pierre Gelin.

Thursday he said he might start sophomore Kevin Cunningham at offensive right tackle instead of Randy Young but would make a final decision following Friday's brief workout.

NU Leads Big 8 Statistics

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nebraska is moving the football better than any other team in the Big Eight Conference and holding its opponents to fewer yards.

The third-ranked Huskers have had 596 plays in seven games and gained 2,909 yards or a game average of 415.6 yards. Behind them in total offense are Colorado with a 413.6-yard game average and Missouri with 384.7.

In total defense, Nebraska has yielded 1,614 yards on 421 plays for a game average of 230.6 yards. Oklahoma, with a 231.9-yard average, is second and Kansas, 287.7, third.

The Huskers also lead in three other statistical departments, scoring offense, scoring defense and rushing defense. Nebraska has scored 249 points for an average of 35.6 points a game. Oklahoma has averaged 33.9 and Colorado 29.7.

NPPD Increases Electricity Rates

Columbus (AP) — The Nebraska Public Power District board of directors approved rate adjustments Thursday reflecting substantial increases for both wholesale and retail customers.

The district's wholesale rate is based on additional required revenues of $23.7 million for 1976, and $25.7 million for 1977. Wholesale rates are set for two-year periods.

Retail rates were set to produce an additional $13.6 million in revenue for the 1976 budget year, an increase of 35.9% in required revenues over 1975.

Directors had been told by management earlier that the cost of doing business had soared to an extent that there was no choice but to increase rates.

The rate increase for wholesale customers, to go into effect Jan. 1, 1976, will be the first since 1972. The district's retail customers experienced higher rates the first of this year, and the new retail rate will take effect with billings on and after March 1, 1976.

NPPD serves nearly 98,000 customers in Nebraska at retail, while the district's wholesale customers include 27 rural and other power districts and cooperatives, 50 cities and towns with total requirements, and 18 cities and towns who take some of their power from NPPD.

The NPPD board set the new rates based on cost of service, and there are no changes in general rate philosophy included in the new structure.

An average NPPD residential retail customer using 750 kilowatt hours of electricity per month in a city of more than 2,500 population would pay $20.62 per month under the new rate, which represents a 32% increase over the former rate.

A similar customer in a town under 2,500 population would pay $21.65 under the new rate, reflecting an increase of 28% over the former rate.

Wholesale rates are based on two factors — energy, primarily fuel used in the production process, and demand, the other generation and transmission costs based on peak demands.

Comparing actual September, 1975, billings with the new rate showed that a small municipal customer of NPPD would experience about a 51% increase, while a large municipal customer would have about a 49% increase.

Using the same basis of comparison, a small or a large rural power district both would experience about a 51% increase in the cost of electricity.

NPPD said since wholesale power costs are only one component of retail rates, the percentage impact of the wholesale rate increase on retail rates would be considerably less than the percentage increase of the wholesale rate itself.

Market Left In Virtual Standoff

NEW YORK (AP) — The off-setting effects of New York City's financial worries and a prime rate cut by a St. Louis bank left the stock market in a virtual standoff Thursday. Prices were mixed in moderate trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials managed to record a .79 gain to 839.42 after its 12.83-point slide Wednesday.

But declining issues outnumbered gainers 726 to 616 among the 1,782 traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost .08 to 89.31, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index also slipped .08, to 47.18.

Big Board volume came to 15.08 million shares, down from 16.11 million Wednesday.

The day's activity, however, was enough to push volume on the exchange past the 4 billion-share mark for the year to date. The present full-year record of 4.13 billion, set in 1972, appears likely to be surpassed by the middle of next month.

Early in the session the First National Bank of St. Louis announced it was cutting its prime rate from 7 1/4 to 7 1/8 per cent.

Last week the St. Louis bank was among the first to cut the key rate from 8 to 7 1/4—a reduction that had spread to most major banks by early this week.

Weekly statistics issued by the Federal Reserve after the close indicated that the formula used at New York's First National City Bank, second largest in the country, would permit it also to go to 7 1/8 Friday morning, provided it chose to do so.

The Dow struggled to a gain of about 4 points early in the afternoon with the encouragement of the prime rate hopes.

But it was evident that the rally couldn't attract much sustained buying interest with investors still contemplating the prospect of a financial default by New York City.

Felix Rohatyn, chairman of New York's Municipal Assistance Corp., said the city had less than one chance of 20 of averting a default through the end of the year without federal assistance. President Ford asserted Wednesday he would veto any measure calling for federal help designed to prevent default.

Polaroid was the most active issue on the Big Board, unchanged at 36 1/4. A 121,700-share block traded at 36 1/4.

Quaker Oats picked up 1 1/2 to 23 1/2 in active trading on top of a 1 1/4-point jump Wednesday, when the company came in with sharply higher quarterly earnings.

Stocks of New York banks, with their large holdings of New York City securities, encountered more selling. Citicorp dropped 3/4 to 27, J.P. Morgan 2 to 47, and Chase Manhattan 1/4 to 25 1/2, all in active trading.

U.S. Steel, which projected a decline in fourth quarter shipments, lost 7/8 to 63 1/2, and most other steels declined fractionally.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index sagged 12 to 82.82.

Improvements In Coordination Is Forum Topic

The Nebraska Advisory Council for Vocational Education will conduct a forum on improving coordination between secondary and post-high school education systems, according to C.A. Cromer, executive director.

The two-hour forum will begin at 10 a.m. Nov. 12 in the Nebraska Supreme Court Hearing Room in the State Capitol.

Council Chairman Virginia A. Viereggs said a four-member panel will develop the topic, followed by an open discussion period. The council is exploring all aspects of improving the effectiveness of Nebraska vocational education.

She said the forum will also allow an opportunity to express any other views concerning vocational education.

Top grade 190-250 pound barrows and gilts were 2.00-2.50 lower, with weights over 250 pounds unevenly 2.50-3.50 lower, instances 4.00 off.

200-237 pounds barrows and gilts sold for $3.25, and 190-240 pounds worth $2.50-3.00 and 240-250 pounds at $2.00-2.50.

Sows opened 75-1.50 lower and closed 1.50-2.50 off, with 350-650 pounds sows bringing 45.50-47.00.

With 700 cattle on hand, a few loads and part loads of slaughter steers and heifers were steady to 50 lower but not enough were offered to afford a market test.

Cows made up the bulk of the fresh supply and continued dull, 1.00-1.50 lower, some 2.00 off.

No sheep were offered.

NETV Attacks 3% Budget Cuts

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

What began as a discussion Thursday to see where it might cut spending ended with the Nebraska Educational Television (NETV) Commission assailing the Legislature's short-term budget-making process.

Jack McBride, NETV network general manager, told commissioners if the Legislature slashes 3% from state agency budgets next week, the $75.678 NETV stands to lose is "no small or insignificant sum."

To operate under Federal Communications Commission regulations, maintain equipment and fulfill contracts demands "an extremely honest budget," he said.

The 1975 NETV budget approved by the Legislature "wasn't prepared in a willy-nilly manner" and was submitted to "exhaustive evaluation," McBride said. There are "no pockets whatsoever from which we could take funds to accommodate" any cut.

Any state agency director who "just has $75,000 hanging around, shouldn't be around very long" himself, McBride said.

Commissioner Steven B. Sample, NU executive vice president, said that the commission must tell state officials that swiftly considered cuts are not good public policy, and should be allowed "only for a bona fide public emergency in the state."

Sample told commissioners that Nebraska is "moving to shorter and shorter term budgets," with reduced time between spending rationale and the decisions on allotting funds.

Reductions don't necessarily affect the lowest priority items, but those for which funding isn't irrevocably committed, Sample said.

The commission unanimously approved a motion to make no statement indicating whether it could live with a 3% across-the-board budget rollback. It directed the NETV staff to list possible areas to be cut and the resulting impact on services.

It also issued an official complaint about state budgeting methods.

McBride said NETV is "already understaffed," and urged the commission avoid eliminating any positions. Commissioners reluctantly noted that's the only effective way to achieve savings.

"We have spent one-third of our fiscal year budget," McBride said. Thus a 3% reduction on two-thirds of the budget increases the percentage of the cut.

McBride said fixed NETV costs include $380,000 for the building payment, and $244,470 to maintain the microwave interconnection system. Other maintenance on "expensive and complicated equipment has to be done," or it would "cause necessity for replacement."

Further, NETV must pay Public Broadcasting Service fixed dues to air national public programming, he said. McBride opposed reducing programs, since they represent the network's reason for existing.

Besides, the 107 broadcast hours weekly would have to be cut back 20% to 25% before any dollars could be saved, he said.

In a forced situation, McBride said, Heritage Library funding of $10,000 could be reduced 50%, but only half as many programs would be preserved. Another $10,000 that state lawmakers awarded for original special programming about Nebraska could go.

"We could scrap $5,000, possibly, from PBS programming," and another $18,000 earmarked to modify NETV air conditioning. But the latter would reduce equipment life, he said.

"I move we eliminate televising the Legislature," Commission Vice Chairman June Popken of Brady declared. After a silence, McBride asked if she was serious.

Commissioner James Johnson of Kearney said that kind of action "really brings it home to them (lawmakers)."

NETV Attacks 3% Budget Cuts

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

What began as a discussion Thursday to see where it might cut spending ended with the Nebraska Educational Television (NETV) Commission assailing the Legislature's short-term budget-making process.

Jack McBride, NETV network general manager, told commissioners if the Legislature slashes 3% from state agency budgets next week, the $75,678 NETV stands to lose is "no small or insignificant sum."

To operate under Federal Communications Commission regulations, maintain equipment and fulfill contracts demands "an extremely honest budget," he said.

The 1975 NETV budget approved by the Legislature "wasn't prepared in a willy-nilly manner" and was submitted to "an exhaustive evaluation," McBride said. There are "no pockets whatsoever from which we could take funds to accommodate" any cut.

Any state agency director who "just has $75,000 hanging around, shouldn't be around very long" himself, McBride said.

Commissioner Steven B. Sample, NU executive vice president, said that the commission must tell state officials that swiftly considered cuts are not good public policy, and should be allowed "only for a bona fide public emergency in the state."

Sample told commissioners that Nebraska is "moving to shorter and shorter term budgets," with reduced time between spending rationale and the decisions on allotting funds.

Reductions don't necessarily affect the lowest priority items, but those for which funding isn't irrevocably committed, Sample said.

The commission unanimously approved a motion to make no statement indicating whether it could live with a 3% across-the-board budget rollback. It directed the NETV staff to list possible areas to be cut and the resulting impact on services.

It also issued an official complaint about state budgeting methods.

McBride said NETV is "already understaffed," and urged the commission avoid eliminating any positions. Commissioners reluctantly noted that's the only effective way to achieve savings.

"We have spent one-third of our fiscal year budget," McBride said. Thus a 3% reduction on two-thirds of the budget increases the percentage of the cut.

McBride said fixed NETV costs include $390,000 for the building payment, and $244,470 to maintain the microwave interconnection system. Other maintenance on "expensive and complicated equipment has to be done," or it would "cause necessity for replacement."

Further, NETV must pay Public Broadcasting Service fixed dues to air national public programming, he said. McBride opposed reducing programs, since they represent the network's reason for existing.

Besides, the 107 broadcast hours weekly would have to be cut back 20 to 25% before any dollars could be saved, he said.

In a forced situation, McBride said, Heritage Library funding of $10,000 could be reduced 50%, but only half as many programs would be preserved. Another $10,000 that state lawmakers awarded for original special programming about Nebraska could go.

"We could scrap $5,000, possibly, from PBS programming," and another $18,000 earmarked to modify NETV air conditioning. But the latter would reduce equipment life, he said.

"I move we eliminate televising the Legislature," Commission Vice Chairman June Popken of Brady declared. After a silence, McBride asked if she was serious. Commissioner James Johnson of Kearney said that kind of action "really brings it home to them (lawmakers)."

VA Doctor Fired In Hospital Probe

Omaha (UPI) — An investigation into allegations made against the Omaha Veterans Administration hospital has resulted in the firing of the co-chief of the hospital's anesthesiology department, it was announced Thursday.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Nebr., said in a statement from Washington that Dr. Jerry R. Haskin "was the individual released from his duties recently." He was fired effective Friday.

Curtis called for a probe into the Omaha VA Hospital earlier this year after his office received allegations regarding conduct of hospital employees.

Curtis said a "full report" on the investigation was being "written at this time to be presented at a later date to VA Administrator Richard Roubush."

In an earlier statement, Curtis said, "although the VA reported that a majority of the allegations have little substance, they said some of the serious allegations were substantiated."

Dr. John J. Matoole, acting hospital administrator, said the investigation into Haskin focused on "time accountability" and didn't involve his professional competence.

The preliminary VA report showed Haskin showed up "very little" at the hospital in Dec. 1974, Jan. 1975 and Feb. 1975, averaging from two hours to 25 hours weekly. He was required to work at the hospital 35 hours weekly.

The report said Haskin "spent a great deal of time" working at other hospitals and had his own corporation. Records of other hospitals showed Haskins spent at least 499 hours at the hospitals when he should have been working at the VA facility.

The investigation showed Haskin and two other hospital professionals mentioned in the allegations were competent. The interim report said in much of the mail Curtis received, the allegations were "union inspired."

Allegations lacking foundation, the VA said were: —Hospital equipment was "going out the back door." —A head nurse was saving nursing jobs for her own friends and abused her sick leave privileges. "The nurse has since left the hospital."

—A VA physician refused to give an anesthetic to a patient who was hemorrhaging. VA officials said the patient was intoxicated and the operation being considered would have been highly risky under those circumstances.

The probe was conducted from July 7 to Sept. 19 this year.

I agree — we wouldn't have all this silliness going on today if more people would just start acting their age.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Quote from a Pulitzer Prize-winning science editor: "Attacks on astrology without previous intensive investigation by competent individuals must, from now on, be regarded as a very antiquated, unscientific practice closely related to witch hunting and must be correctly diagnosed as a symptom of professional paranoia on the part of the individual doing the attacking." — John J. O'Neill

ARIES (March 21-April 19): New approach to job, basic issues is indicated. Emphasis is on meeting people who share your basic interests. You advance by trying new techniques. Pay more attention to nutritional intake — refuse short cuts, substitutes. You have right to quality. Don't sell yourself short.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with changes of creative nature, intensified relationship, unusual dealings with young persons. Rise above the petty — see a temporary setback. Aquarian could play key role.

GEEMIN (May 21-June 20): Push forward where basics are concerned. Protect assets. Be flexible enough to work with material at hand. Now you can expand. You can break down barriers which limit progress. Know it — and do something about it. Sagittarian might be involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Short trip could be featured. Visits, visitors and special messages also are spotlighted. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio are likely to be in picture. Read between the lines before affixing signature to any document.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis on collections, payments, consolidating, getting money affairs in order. Be analytical. Take nothing for granted. Be aware of costs hidden or otherwise. Find the "why" of happenings. People will talk — but you must ask the right questions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You get proverbial second chance. Circumstances seem to fall into place. Your personality shines — popularity increases. If diplomatic, you win friends and influence important people. Who is "important" will be decided — by your own definition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Much occurs may appear shrouded in mystery. Subtle nuances, signals fly back and forth — you are being told "something," but no one seems to want to be direct. Don't compound error. Say what you mean and mean what you say. Pisces, Virgo persons are probably involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Nothing now is apt to be tepid. The pace quickens and relationships intensify. A friend gives you "facts of life." You may be annoyed, but you also will be enlightened. Money is in picture — and once again the lesson is drive home — no one is going to give you something for nothing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your abilities receive wider recognition. More persons rely on your judgments, decisions. Know it, be confident and try to be impartial. Aries, Libra figure in picture. You may be offered a "promotion."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Study Sagittarius message for valid hint. Highlight communications, advertising, publishing. Educational project — or ambition — provides stimulation, inspiration. Tap creative powers. Imprint your style. Lead rather than imitate. Display courage of convictions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Highlight willingness to face truth about people, places — and money. Partner or mate has some hard questions to ask — and answer. Your ESP is activated. You have "extra" information. Another Aquarian may want to argue.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on contracts, partnerships, co-operative efforts and marriage. Be versatile — and willing to laugh at your own foibles. Permit others to take initiative. You could make significant gain now by being a shrewd observer.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY — you know what is going on before most persons realize anything at all. You were on your own early, at least in a psychological sense. Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. You are on brink of adventure, chance to be independent and loved. You will be rid of problem which was not your own in first place.

Discover your love and money mates! Send 75 cents to Omarr Astrology Secrets, The Lincoln Star, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053. You'll find answers in Sidney Omarr's booklet, "Secret Hints for Men and Women." (c) 1975, Los Angeles Times

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your name. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 4 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
